TERRIFIC JAM AT GAS HEARING

PLOT LAID BARE

John B. Moran, Boston Lawyer, Taking Part in Fight for Cheaper Gas.

JOHN B. MORAN ON THE GAS QUESTION

This gas steal seeks to compound the offences of the gas grabbers who have squeezed Boston for so many years. Give these men what they want now and you fetter Boston for a century.—John B. Moran on the Gas Consolidation Act.

John B. Moran Follows Lawyer Anderson, Who Exposed Plan of Gas Trust to Grab $6,000,000 in Capitalization Plan---Citizens Denounce Failure to Provide Room for Throngs at Hearing.

Declaring that the Legislative Committee on Public Lighting was not compelled to give public hearings, Chairman Cole of that committee to-day barred the doors of the committee room upon several hundred persons who had gathered to hear the testimony in the struggle inaugurated by the BOSTON AMERICAN for cheaper gas.

With the closing of the doors to the committee room, before the hour set for the hearing, there followed scenes unprecedented in the State House. Hundreds clamored for admission, and the doors to the room where the hearing was to take place were battered, and in some cases the glass cracked. Men and women, in great crowds besieged the doors of the committee room with shouts, with demands to be admitted.

Hearing Delayed an Hour

The inside of the Committee room was occupied by a comparatively few of those who had gone to the hearing with the idea of hearing John B. Moran and Thomas W. Lawson on the questions at issue. So great was the turmoil outside, however, that the hearing did not begin at the time stated, half past ten o'clock.

It was an hour later when the first person to be heard arose, this being George W. Anderson, who spoke on the $6,000,000 debts sought to be handed over to the Consolidated Company when all the companies are brought into one.

Immediately after Mr. Anderson had concluded, John B. Moran began his address to the committee. This address was expected to be one of the most sensational that has been made before the Committee. In it Mr. Moran will probably challenge Thomas W. Lawson, and it may bring an address by Mr. Lawson.

Today's scenes about the corridors were a measure repititions of those of Tuesday when the hearing was adjourned because of the great crowd that had gathered. There were more people there to-day, however, the shouts for admittance were more emphatic and the doorkeepers were kept busy explaining.

Women in Throng.

One of those who tried to gain admittance to the room was a woman about forty years old. She pushed a piece of glass, which had been broken by the rush of the crowd on the committee room door, out and tried to get a look inside that way. Finally she left the building, declaring that she would take steps to open the doors.

Lawyer Snow, counsel for the gas companies, was late in arriving and had a very hard time to make his way through the crowd. When Doorkeeper Patrick tried to get him and some other men into room No. 26 he found himself locked out. They made their way, closely pressed, by the throng, to the door of an adjoining room. There, after a hard effort the doorkeeper was able to get the men in after which he had to fight the rest of the crowd back.

BUILDING IN UPROAR.

Some of the men who were disappointed pounded on doors and others cheered so that the corridors of the big building rang with the noise of the shut-out. The door keepers tried to reason with the indignant men, but with very little success. They declared that it was a public hearing and that the committee should have provided ample quarters to accommodate all those who wished to attend.

Among those who were in the first rush into the room were half a dozen women. They succeeded in getting seats. More women arrived after the doors were closed and when they realized the situation they left the State House.

The demonstration in the corridors on the State House was not made by a rabble but by citizens of Boston who are deeply interested in the fight for cheaper gas.

One of the most indignant citizens among those who were unable to get into the hearing was J. Randolph Brown. He had a spirited encounter with Doorkeeper Patrick about it.

"It is illegal to close that door before 10:30 o'clock, the hour advertised for this hearing," said Mr. Brown. "That door was closed and locked an hour before it should have been. You had no right to do it."

"I acted on the orders of the committee," said the doorkeeper.

"Well, the committee was acting illegally, then," retorted the angered man.

Thaddeus E. Friend, of Gloucester, who was kept out of the attempt at holding a meeting yesterday, was among those crowded out again to-day. He left the State House protesting against the action of the committee in not providing more commodious quarters for the hearing.

Eager Crowd Long in Waiting.

The doors of the committee room were opened at 9 o'clock, but long before that time there was an eager, anxious crowd on hand waiting for admission. In charge of the force of doorkeepers was Thomas F. Pedrick, the doorkeeper of the House.

Seats for 250 people had been provided in the room, and those were snatched up by the rush of people in a few moments. Then the door of the room was closed and

MIGHTY STRUGGLE STILL RAGING WITH BATTLE ISSUE UNDECIDED.

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, March 1.—St. Petersburg announces that Kuropatkin has informed the war office of Russian successes in the battle of the Hun.

A dispatch was received at the Russian capital to-day from the commander-in-chief of the Manchurian army that the Japanese have been repulsed at Gontulin, on the Russian left, while the Russians have captured the head of the bridge which crosses the Sahke River.

In a later telegram Kuropatkin reports that the Russians still hold Kudiatse and Gontulin.

The mighty conflict is still raging, and in spite of the Russian dispatches, war critics declare the advantage is overwhelmingly with the Japanese.

Over 700,000 men are fighting the most stupendous conflict of the war. The battle front extends over 100 miles, from the Hun River to Shi Ling Ting, the latter place commanding the Japanese lines to the Yalu base.

COSSACKS BADLY BEATEN.

General Kuroki, according to Tokio dispatches, is the centre of greatest interest on the side of the Japanese. He is a master of circumvention. It was he who made the evacuation of Liao-Yang necessary by his threatening of the rear of the opposing forces. To-day he is repeating the same tactics.

Buried against the great Japanese general is the fiery chief of the Cossacks, General Rennenkampf. He is referred to as the Sheridan of the Russian army. With the most daring of his mounted men, with a complement of sharpshooters and with infantry and artillery, the dauntless Rennekampf met Kuroki—and he was badly defeated.

Thus has Kuroki again turned the Russians' left. He is sweeping around that end of the forces of Kuropatkin, and it is believed that he will soon be able to strike a great blow from the rear unless his action forces the Russian general to retreat to Tie Pass.

Tieling is forty-two miles north of Mukden. When the Russians were driven from Liao Yang last Autumn it was fortified in contemplation of a retreat beyond Mukden. It was the third and last point prepared in Kuropatkin's plan for retreat. The first was Liao Yang, the second Mukden and the third Tie Pass. It is a narrow defile with a mountain on one side and admirably adapted by nature for a great defence.

MINOR RUSSIAN SUCCESSES.

In military circles it is pointed out that Kuropatkin's withdrawal from Liao Yang was successfully accomplished in the face of danger even greater than confronts him now. Kuropatkin, it seems, was successful at several points in the fighting yesterday and the effect of these successes is problematical upon his reported intention to withdraw.

The Russian position along the whole hundred miles of front is heavily fortified, and the slaughter will be terrible if the Japanese are successful in carrying the Russian positions.

It is reported from Russian headquarters that the Japanese have made ten assaults on the Russian centre, and were beaten back with fearful loss after desperate hand to hand fighting. The opposing

1,200 STONECUTTERS STRIKE IN QUINCY

Special to the Boston American.

QUINCY, March 1.—A mass meeting of 1,200 granite cutters who went out on a strike for a minimum wage of $3, will be held at 2 o'clock to-day at St. Mary's Hall, West Quincy, to consider new propositions to submit to the manufacturers.

Not a stroke of work is being done by the granite cutters, except some of the apprentices. It is expected that, with the strike declared on, the polishers, quarrymen and tool sharpeners may go out, involving possibly a thousand more men.

Alexander Smith will be chairman of the mass meeting, and Secretary Duncan, of the International Granite Cutters' Union, who arrived here to-day, will probably address the men.

The strike is perfectly orderly so far. The men are gathering in union halls or standing in groups about the streets, talking over the situation. There have not been any signs of violence.

The union says that all terms that the last proposition from the manufacturers was not a fair one, from the union standpoint. The manufacturers proposed paying $3 to skilled men, with an arbitration clause to decide the rate for unskilled workmen. This proposition was submitted to the union, which rejected it and reiterated its demand for a minimum wage scale of $3 a day for all cutters, without discrimination.

Business Men Anxious.

No suggestion has been made yet which offers any compromise, but it is thought that this afternoon's mass meeting may develop some plan on which the manufacturers and the cutters can come together.

The business men of the Quincys, fearing a prolonged strike, are very anxious to have the trouble adjusted. The union men are willing to stand out for a long fight, if necessary. The union is financially strong and help can be obtained from Barre, Vt., Westerly, R. I., and other quarry centres, if funds are needed.

3 HURT IN TROLLEY CRASH

Worcester Electric Tumbles Over Twenty-Foot Embankment.

BROKEN POLE THE CAUSE

Special to the Boston American.

WORCESTER, March 1.—Three passengers were injured by the derailment of a trolley car on the Lake division of the Worcester consolidated line at 8 o'clock to-day, and passengers in another, which was passing the first at the time, had a narrow escape because of a broken telegraph pole. It was knocked down by the derailed car, fell over the latter and the one passing in an opposite direction. The derailed car plunged down a twenty foot embankment and turned over, but not a pane of window glass was broken.

FELL THREE STORIES AND STRUCK BARREL

Charles Colson, fifty-six years old, fell from a third-story window in the Hollis Chambers at No. 247 Tremont street today and struck a refuse barrel in the alley in the rear. He was taken to the City Hospital and his condition is serious. He lives in South Boston.

FALL RIVER GIRL WEDS A YOUNG INDIAN CHIEFTAIN, LONG ARROW

BRIDEGROOM A COLLEGE MAN; ROUGH RIDER

Actor and Athlete, He Won Miss Corbett's Admiration by His Prowess.

HEAD OF KICKAPOO TRIBE

Special to the Boston American.

FALL RIVER, Feb. 28.—Chief Long Arrow, son of Black Cloud, chief of the Kickapoos, has been married here to Miss Annie Corbett, of No. 100 Borden street, a pretty mill girl who joined the strikers when the big cotton plants closed in July last. The bridegroom is Christian and family names are Walter King. He is a Carlisle student and as straight as the shaft taken as his aboriginal name. The ceremony took place at the rectory of the St. Louis Episcopal Church, and Rev. W. J. Dixon officiated.

Miss Corbett met Long Arrow in New York, where the young Indian athlete was giving exhibitions in horsemanship and tomahawk throwing. He learned to rope and ride in the bronco on the plains of Panhandle Texas. He was born in Aberdeen, Texas, and derived his family name from his mother, Margaret King, under authorization of the United States government.

Long Arrow was so bright and promising that he was sent to Carlisle College. There he was a star student and one of the best football stars of the famous eleven. After graduating, he played baseball in connection with Miss Corbett and when they met she soon fell in love with the stalwart Redman. Chieftainship is not hereditary among the Kickapoos and Long Arrow won his title and authority among his father's people by his bravery, his intelligence and personal worth.

Mrs. Walter King is a very happy bride. She said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

Miss King Tells of Husband.

"Walter has had a great many wild experiences. He was a Rough Rider in Cuba during the Spanish war, a football player at Carlisle, played baseball, is a perfect horseman and a crack shot. He has all other kinds of an honest, free hearted fellow. I am the proudest of him that he carries Indian blood, though his modesty in picture shows her to be a creamy faced white woman with light hair and laughing blue eyes. I am well satisfied with my choice of a white-souled man."

Chief Long Arrow is modest as well as brave, and is now to begin a tour of the Southwestern plains and in the athletic room, but he had no idea of the present danger.

"I never had such a close call in Cuba or anywhere as in Fall River on Sunday night," he said. "While waiting at the railroad station for a friend who was to be my best man, I walked along the track to an elevated grade crossing and was caught there by a freight train. I was too jump or die in an instant. I jumped and landed all right on the far side of the President avenue, twenty-five feet below. There wasn't a scratch on me."

Mr. and Mrs. King leave here Sunday for Hillsboro, N. H., where he will join a theatrical company.

WHOLE FAMILY OF 4 VICTIMS OF TYPHOID

Heroic Girls, 15 and 5 Years Old, Follow Parents They Nursed to Hospital.

Fifteen-year-old Louisa Burgdorf, of No. 20 I street, South Boston, and her five-year-old sister, Minnie, have just been taken to City Hospital, ill with typhoid fever which they contracted while trying heroically to nurse their father and mother, who were sick with the same disease.

The mother was taken to the hospital and the father, Herman Burgdorf, followed and died six days later. The mother is still on the dangerous list. The committ ment of the two daughters to the hospital takes the last of family who can be sent there.

The case of the two daughters is regarded as especially pathetic, as they worked hard nursing their parents and doing the housework, but for some time it was considered one of the truest and most faithful girls ever entered the hospital. As the burden of the work fell on her. The little five-year-old sister, Minnie, could do but a trifle in the way of work, but she helped her big sister all she could.

The mother was taken ill the last of January and was attended by the husband and children. January 31 she was ordered to the hospital. Ten days later the father was stricken and was ordered to the hospital the same day, dying there on the six teenth. The death of the father saddened the mother's condition.

Yesterday the two daughters were taken to hospital and were in turn ordered to the hospital. Immediately by the physicians who had been watching the cases closely. The girls are very ill, but the doctors have their youth and good constitutions will pull them through.

ARREST IN CHENEY CASE THREATENED

Chief Shaw Say He Will Move Against Anyone Who He Finds Took Securities.

"I will arrest any person, no matter how high their social, business or financial standing may be, should my investigation prove that he is in the possession of any of the $285,000 worth of securities from Herman S. Cheney."

This statement was made by Chief Shaw, of the State Police, to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day after he had been in conference with Benjamin F. Dunbar, of the law firm of MacPherson, Hyde & Damon, senior counsel for the Southbridge man whose security box containing valuable securities is now in possession of the police.

"I have consented to assume charge of the investigation into this puzzling case," continued Chief Shaw, "only upon the distinct understanding between Mr. Dunbar and myself that I shall have full powers and that the Pinkertons must be entirely eliminated.

"There is no personal feeling in this matter, but this is the only method by which the case can be successfully investigated."

STEREOTYPERS DANCE TONIGHT

Members of the Stereotypers' Mutual Benefit Society are anticipating a delightful time for themselves and their guests at the closing party of the season. The society to-night in Howe Hall, New Century building, No. 177 Huntington avenue. There will be a concert from 8 o'clock to 9 and dancing will follow until 2.

Feminine friends of the society members have been assisting in the preparations for the dance, and pretty girls will be out in good number.

NEEDHAM FIREMEN OUT ON A STRIKE

Norfolk Town Without Fire Protection on Account of Dissension.

CITIZENS REFUSE SERVICE

NEEDHAM, March 1.—The town of Needham is practically without protection in case of fire. Except from the small extra pump at Highlandville, there is not a man left in the department to man the lines, and the worst feature of the trouble is that no new members can be secured.

The entire companies of Hose 1 and Ladder 1 went out at midnight because of the refusal of the Board of Engineers to retain state Foreman Fred N. Mills, who was suspended by Chief Harry A. Kingsbury, on charges of insubordination and profanity.

For the past few days Assistant Chief H. H. Upham and Chairman Edgar H. Bowers of the Board of Selectmen have been scouring the town in an endeavor to litre men for the department. They found many who were willing to join, but as soon as they learned of the reason for their engagement they at once declined to become members. Only ten or twelve men, all of them beyond the legal age of the sixteen full firemen, signified their willingness to join the department.

Trouble of Long Standing.

There has been trouble in the Needham Fire Department for a long time. The members presented a list of grievances to the Board of Engineers some time ago, complaining of the poor equipment furnished by the town, and the inefficiency of the chief and district chiefs. As the Board of Engineers consists of the chief, his assistant and the three district chiefs, they received no satisfaction, although a mass meeting of the whole department joined in the complaint.

The trouble with Fred N. Mills, who has been a member of the department for several years and is considered the best fire fighter in the town, brought matters to a climax. On the night of January 6 there was a fire in the house of A. Lewis on Chestnut street. Chief Kingsbury ordered Mills to couple a hose with the hydrant, a distance of about seventy pounds to the inch turned on.

Mills refused, declaring that it was impossible. The chief said he had some words, and a few days later charges were preferred against him. He was given a hearing before the Board of Engineers and though the chief seemed inclined to let the matter drop, the rest of the board insisted in demanding an apology from Mills. The latter refused. The board suspended Mills.

Chief Offered to Resign.

Chief Kingsbury, when he found his action was stirring up trouble in the department, sent in his resignation to the Board of Selectmen, but they refused to accept it, and it has since been withdrawn. This means that he will continue at the head of the department till May 1, at least.

The Board of Engineers consists of Chief H. A. Kingsbury, Assistant Chief H. H. Upham and District Chiefs Daniel Kenney, Solomon W. Hutchinson and Timothy Sullivan.

BOSTON & MAINE SALE IS DENIED

Notwithstanding the repeated reports from New York that the control of the Boston & Maine railroad company has been turned over to Vanderbilts, a canvass of the New York Central, a canvass of local authorities shows that there is no truth in the report.

MARCH COMES IN AS LAMB; TO GO OUT LIKE LION

If Old Proverb Proves True, Month Will End in Blustering Storm.

March came in to-day like a lamb.

That's where March is fooling us. It will go out like a lion, according to all rules of weather lore.

Like an innocent, pretty, gambolling lambkin the first month of the Springtime came to Boston in particular and the United States in general. Around the Hub the temperature became comfortable for this season. The mercury was at 32 above at 8 o'clock and has risen comfortably during the day.

"Such beautiful Spring weather," says Dame Boston.

But—

March will not be lambikke all the way through. It is bound to cut unpleasantly, slamming its door hard and kicking up a general mess of dirty weather.

Don't order your Spring clothes in too much of a hurry. Nature is not getting feverish yet.

Remember the ground-hog, what he did. He bolted up promptly from his hole a while ago and took a look around. Suddenly he saw his shadow. Down went the ground-hog into his hole again. The moment wither wasn't ever by any means, for:

The ground-hog saw his shadder,
An' he'll have more winter yet.

And the month of March has "gone ter housin" with the ground-hog, and his hole is up his judgment by coming in like a lamb, that he may go out like a lion.

WILL RETURN BATTLE FLAGS

ANGRY THRONG IS BARRED FROM THE GAS HEARING

Denounce Barred Doors As An Outrage on the People

By Ex-Senator Lewis Bartlett of Lynn.

There should have been an effort made to secure larger quarters. The public wants a chance to hear this testimony. It interests everybody in the Commonwealth.

By Colonel A. C. Drinkwater.

This is a public hearing that is not public. There should be an effort made to get larger quarters. It is not right. I call it an outrage.

STATE HOUSE RINGS WITH PROTESTS

locked. The crowd on the outside began to grow in number and more fretful they clamored.

"Why can't we get in?" one man asked. "Isn't this a public meeting?"

"Yes," replied the doorkeeper, "But the room is full. All the seats are taken."

"Why didn't they get another room—one big enough to hold all the people who want to take part in this meeting?"

"I don't know—I don't know," protested the doorkeeper. "All I know is that the room is full and no more can get in."

Just then Senator Clark, who is a member of the committee, appeared. He was accompanied by his stenographer. He asked for admittance, but was refused. He explained that he was a member of the committee and must be let in. The doorkeeper was obdurate until the Senator was finally identified as a member of the committee and then he was allowed to enter.

Lawson Is Cheered Again.

Thomas W. Lawson appeared in the State House shortly after 10 o'clock. He was accompanied by Homer Albers, his attorney, and as soon as the crowd caught sight of the State street financier and author they gave a great cheer. Mr. Lawson and his attorney had to fight their way through, and three men were pushed far behind the doorkeeper and a hard time getting the door opened to squeeze in the late arrivals. The crowd continued to increase in size.

There were fully 1000 people gathered about the corridor leading to the hearing room by this time.

Frequently the doorkeepers were compelled to use force to get the crowd away from the doors. Lawyers who came for admittance had to fight their way through, and three well dressed people left behind after much onslaught at the doors.

Shouts of "Let us in" and "This is a public hearing, we have a right to hear this thing" could be heard throughout the corridors.

Henry Dobbins, of No. 10 Beacon street, had a scuffle with one of the doorkeepers. Mr. Dobbins tried to get in after the doors were closed. He was pushed by the attendant and forced back.

"I shall have my rights," Mr. Dobbins said. "I don't care for any hands on me."

He was, however, pushed through the crowd and did not get in.

Colonel A. C. Drinkwater of Braintree was another citizen who was barred.

Declared it an Outrage.

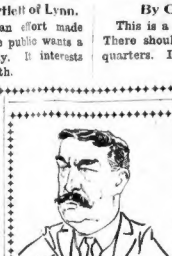
This is a public meeting that is not public," Colonel Drinkwater said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "There should have been an effort made to secure larger quarters. It is not right. This crowd here shows how to a few people are interested. I call it an outrage."

Ex-Senator Lewis Bartlett, of Lynn, who was thrust back, said:

"There should have been an effort made to secure larger quarters. The public wants a chance to hear this testimony. It interests everybody in the Commonwealth."

The principals in yesterday's dramatic scenes were Joseph Walker of Westfield, chairman of the Public Lighting Committee, and Thomas W. Lawson, author and committee; the attorneys for the people, George Fred Anderson, who represents the Public Franchise League; Junius T. Anderson, who represents the 5000 citizens who signed the BOSTON AMERICAN'S petition for a hearing, and Homer Albers, on behalf of the bills preventing the inflated capitalization of the gas companies of Massachusetts. Mr. Moran had promised to pay his respects to the men whose names have become household words as connected with the dark history of modern graft.

Thomas W. Lawson was present, as he had promised, to listen to Mr. Moran's attack, but was not permitted again to-day. He had advertised that he would have an explanation of the "Frenzied Finance" article in the latter tried to connect him in any way, with the "scandal." Hence the following statement issued regarding to-day's hearing he says:



LAWSON READY FOR THE FRAY.

Famous financier and author of "Frenzied Finance" girded for the gas battle at the State House to-day.

"John B. Moran, a member of the Massachusetts Bar and a citizen of Massachusetts in good standing, advertised he would hold forth at the State House on the corruption of the past, the iniquities of the present and the contemplated crimes of the future, and we all went to the State House—not in the semblance of the "Seaton" and his corporations—but to our State House, and you know the rest.

"We were dismissed until we could come in a more subdued and chastened spirit, a spirit more in keeping with the occasion. The assembly sardines of the Trusts of Massachusetts must be protected at any cost from unpleasant truths. I advise our citizens to continue to come to the State House until they have been heard. Above all things, I advise them not to [illegible] way [illegible] which was the American people are subject—'freshness.'"

General Schaff Was Late.

While Mr. Anderson was talking General Schaff of the Gas Commission succeeded in forcing his way through the crowd and, reaching the doorway, entered the hearing room.

Mr. Anderson's argument was clear, concise and powerful. He reviewed the history of gas up to the present time. He argued against the over-capitalization contemplated in the act of 1903 and the proposed capitalization grab planned, which was unknown until a few days ago—by the "Frenzied Finance."

"The Massachusetts Gas Companies, which is a trust, is the sort of an organization which sooner or later the Legislature must deal with," said Mr. Anderson. "Neither directly nor indirectly has appeared ever been given it. The profit which buys its stock, supposes this to be competition also, but they receive only certificates of a proportionate interest in the trust.

"It is significant that the trust asks you to give it better standing by allowing this consolidation. But it declines to form to corporation laws. This must be stopped in this community.

"The financial methods of the trust are as open to condemnation as were those of J. Edward Addicks. This consolidation plan is worse to public interests than even those of Mr. Addicks himself. You are earnestly asked to set the seal of ban and reproval of this Commonwealth on a trust which sooner or later the Legislature will be called on to wipe out of existence.

"The thing to do is to allow these companies to consolidate, excluding the Pipe Line, if no greater sum than $6,000,000.

"Sober minded, thinking citizens have come before you to-day entirely without acrimony. We hope you will review and weigh it with careful, and all the aspects, with due regard to the rights of capital and then decide this all-important and [illegible] proposal legislature."

Mr. Moran then commenced his argument.

FURIOUS FIGHTING ALONG 100-MILE FRONT ON HUN RIVER

O!! Baby, Baby Romanoff, you did not know the way hen you came floating to the world in fluffy clouds one day.
ou did not know the palace gates that swung to let you in ere built upon a mount of skulls and dyed with crimson sin.

You only harbened to the call of praying mother love,
Responding to the wistful voice that reached you far above.
Ah! what a place you wandered to for that dear mother's sake!
Oh! Baby, Baby Romanoff, God grant you never wake.

—From poem by James Montague.

forces were so close that bayonets and hand grenades were used.

In many places the Russians made counter attacks, on the right flank the Russians occupied the village of Baolatsi, which is close to Sandiapu, and from that position hurled hand grenades across the intervening ravine into the Japanese trenches in Sandiapu, causing heavy loss and great disorder.

The Russians have seized the head of the bridge across the Shakhe River, in the centre of the Japanese lines, assisted by artillery firing of particular energy from Putiloff Hill and Novgorod Hill.

The seizure of the bridge was the occasion of a sharp combat. The Russians succeeded in surprising the Japanese bridge guards and, re-enforced, beat off the attempts of the Japanese to regain possession of it.

The Japanese are using heavy siege artillery in the bombardment of Putiloff hill and Novgorod hill, and this is believed to be preliminary to an attempt to storm them. The losses to the defending forces are insignificant. The roar of artillery firing is echoing unceasingly from the mountains to the eastward to the low flats of the Hun River valley, the scene of General Gripenberg's repulse.

SIGNAL VICTORY FOR JAPAN.

General Kuroki's attack on the Russian left was one of the most dashing encounters of the war, and the Japanese achieved a signal victory over the forces commanded by Lieutenant-General Rennenkampf. While this victory is important in itself, it is more so because of the strategic advantage gained by the Japanese. The fighting was over a mountainous country between thirty and forty-five miles east of Yental, which is about fifteen miles north-east of Liaoyang.

General Kuroki's infantry again displayed remarkable qualities as hill fighters and proved their superiority to the famous cavalry of the Russians. In the movement a body of Japanese troops which had been advancing from Houshi swung around toward the northeast and swept the Russians before them.

The Japanese now hold strong lines extending from southwest to northwest and partly eastward of the Talisu river, threatening the Russian left flank. General Rennenkampf commanded a division and a half of cavalry, a division of infantry and a body of sharpshooters, with full complement of guns.

The principal engagement was northeast of Telinkhechen, where the Russians held strongly defended entrenchments.

The Russians left 293 dead on the field there and lost several machine guns. The casualties are estimated at over 2,000.

CHINESE TO AID JAPAN.

Dispatches from New Chwang state that over 40,000 Russian army engineers are in building elaborate defensive works on the extreme Japanese left, and that large forces of cavalry are protecting the Russian flanks.

It is reported here that a railroad bridge between Tie Pass and Kalyuan has been destroyed. It also is reported that large bodies of well armed Chinese bandits are preparing to harass the retreating Russians when the Russians endeavor to break General Kuroki's enveloping movement.

NINETEEN SLAIN, FORTY WOUNDED, IN KURSK REVOLT

ST. PETERSBURG, March 1.—The revolutionary and strike movements have extended to the town of Kursk, in the province of the same name, in Southern European Russia. Fighting has occurred between the rebels and troops, in which nineteen persons were killed and forty wounded. This is the first appearance of insurrection in this region.

NEW JAPANESE LOAN SUBSCRIBED TO TWICE OVER

TOKIO, March 3.—Bankers and financiers, who met to-day to discuss the subscriptions to the domestic loan, found that the amount required had been twice oversubscribed. When the list was opened it was ascertained the bankers had announced they would take 60,000,000 yen, the imperial household 3,000,000 yen and others 30,000,000 yen.

Count Okuma, speaking of the financial capacity of Japan, said it astonished even the friends of the nation. Again, he said, would be able to continue the war without the slightest embarrassment.

STRIKE SITUATION IN POLAND IS AGAIN A SERIOUS MENACE

WARSAW, March 1.—The strike situation in Poland is menacing again. A general strike of shop assistants in Warsaw is expected to-day, unless the demands of the men are conceded. Seventy five per cent. of the employers are willing to give in, but the remainder refuse to do so.

The domestic servants also threaten to strike.

The coal supply in Warsaw is diminishing and prices are rapidly rising, owing to the situation at Sosnovice, where few mines are being operated.

Negotiations between the employers and strikers are continuing, but there appears to be little hope of a successful outcome. All the coal received here now is coming from Silesia.

The owners of the great cotton mills at Zyrardoff to-day notified 15,000 strikers that unless they returned to work immediately the mills would be closed for six months.

There is evidence of a renewal of the Lodz strike.

The Vistula Railway strike still continues and is costing the company 857,500 rubles per day. The fact that the line has been placed under martial law has had no effect.

RUNAWAY BOY RETURNS HOME

"I'll not try to run away from home again—not in the Winter, anyhow. It was awful cold, and I slept in a stable."

Eleven-year-old John E. O'Hara made this statement to-day at his home, No. 15 Crescent avenue, Melrose. John spoke as though he meant what he said, too. He had walked into the house late last night almost frozen and half fainted. He had been away from home since Monday and his parents and the police had been looking for the boy everywhere.

Gopon Rebukes Czar in Letter; Calls Him Empire's Assassin

PARIS, Mar. 1.—The "Humanite" publishes the following letter from Father Gopon, the Russian priest who led the people on the day of the massacre in St. Petersburg, January 22:

Nicholas Romanoff, formerly Czar, but now assassin of an Empire:

Full of simple faith I marched toward thee, peacefully accompanied by the people and thou knowest it.

Innocent blood will always separate thee, assassin, and the Russian people.

Thou canst no longer stem the popular stream now furiously swollen, even by promises of a national assembly.

Dynamite bombs and popular insurrection await all thy race and all assasins of the people.

Torrents of blood will perhaps be shed through thy default and Russia may perish.

Therefore, renounce the throne quickly with thy family. Appear before the tribunal of the people.

Have pity on thy country, O thou who didst offer peace to thy people, but didst slaughter thy children.

POCO BENNETT LOSES LICENSE

That Mayor Daly, of Cambridge, does not take kindly to "Poco" Bennett's scheme for lending money to Harvard students at a high rate of interest, has been demonstrated again. The Board of Aldermen granted Bennett a junk collector's license two weeks ago and the Mayor has revoked it.

The authorities at Harvard strongly objected to Bennett's methods when he was a second-hand clothing collector and entered another contest when they found he was to have another special privilege.

"I think," says the Mayor, "that in the past Bennett has used his license as a means of covering up real business, which is that of lending money at usurious rates of interest."

BOSTON AMERICAN MAILERS DANCE

The sick benefit fund of the BOSTON AMERICAN Mailers' Benefit Association is much larger to-day through proceeds of the association's first annual concert and ball, held in Carbuile Union Hall, Worcester square. Eight hundred association members and their friends attended.

Those in charge of the dancing were: Floor Director Charles McLaughlin and Aide William H. O'Neil, Michael Cronin, Michael J. Fife, John H. Harnedy, Joseph Healey, Charles Bessler, Henry Kiley, George Banagan and James Maguire.

DEMOCRATS AT WORK FOR FALL

The Democratic State Committee has taken time by the forelock and is perfecting its plans for the next campaign, although it is many months away. Twenty towns and cities, which hitherto have had no organization, have been brought into line, and the machinery for getting out the voters perfected.

Captain John Flaherty, chairman of the committee, is working hard in the hope of bringing out a bigger Democratic vote this fall than Massachusetts has yet seen. A system of daily correspondence with the town and city committees throughout the State has been instituted and Secretary Rush is dispatching over fifty letters a day.

FRANKLIN PARK TOBOGGAN CLOSED

The toboggan chute at Franklin Park is closed for the season, and the toboggans owned by private persons and kept at the Park during the Winter, will be shipped in their owners at the latter's expense, if not taken away by Sunday. The golf house, where the toboggans are stored, will be open Saturday and Sunday, so owners may get their toboggans, if they wish to call for them instead of having them forwarded.

SUN SPOTS IN VIEW AGAIN; ARE SMALLER

The new spots on the sun have been photographed at the Harvard Observatory and Professor Pickering says that the solar eruptions discovered on February 5 last. He says they will be visible probably for ten days. According to press dispatches from Pittsburg the new spots cover an area of 3,000,000,000 square miles. This is a much larger area than is usually disturbed by fiery solar storms, but Professor Pickering said it was not exceptionary, considering the immensity of the sun's surface.

He has not figured from the photograph the actual size of the new spots.

Interest in New Satellite.

Much more interest is shown by astronomers in the seventh satellite of Jupiter discovered from the Lick Observatory in California by Professor Perrine, assistant astronomer there. Men who have made the heavens a life study are eagerly awaiting more information about the long hidden mysteries of the monster planet. It is not known if the seventh is credited with having four moons only. Then the fifth was detected, and early this year the sixth and seventh were disclosed as a marvel of photography.

Professor Pickering said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"If the seventh satellite is found to vary in its light, we shall expect to get further telegraphic information from the Lick observatory. We expect that Professor Perrine will prepare at once a full statement of his discoveries."

Jupiter "Beneficent."

Ancient astrologers said that Jupiter was a beneficent planet, and for that reason, besides its size, it was named after the greatest of the mythological gods.

Even the superstitions of the long ago, seven was regarded as both a mystic and lucky number. But the modern mind is used to teach that the planets controlled terrestrial events, even to the weather, never suspected that Jupiter had seven moons.

MILITIA LEAVE TODAY FOR THE INAUGURATION

The staff officers and men of the provisional regiment of the State militia, detailed to represent Massachusetts at the inauguration of President Roosevelt are gathering at their armories this afternoon, preparatory to leaving the city at 5:30 for Washington. They will mobilize at the North station at 4:30, march to the South station and there take the 5:29 boat train for Fall River.

In their tight-fitting leggings, with canteens and haversacks and overcoats in horse-collar roll cresting their breasts, the men will present a fine military appearance. They did fair to receive as many compliments as the Massachusetts troops did at the last inauguration, when they were mistaken by regulars for members of the regular army.

The companies representing the State are First Regiment, H. A.: Batteries G and A of Boston; B of Cambridge; H of Chelsea; F of Taunton; E of New Bedford; Sixth Infantry, Companies A of Wakefield and C of Lowell; Fifth Infantry, Companies L of Malden and I of Attleboro; Companies L of the Second Infantry and a platoon of Troop D. Companies from Lawrence, of Cambridge, and a detachment of the Ambulance Corps will also go.

Major Perlie A. Dyer of the First Heavy Artillery is in command, with Captain Walter E. Lombard as adjutant.

FOR YEARS FOUGHT INSANE DESIRE TO KILL HERSELF

MRS. F. C. MEIS. NEW PHOTO.

WOMAN WHO TRIED TO DIE BY POISON.

Life Story of Mrs. Meis, Who Took Poison at Lynn —Deserted and in Ill-Health.

Special to the Boston American.

TEWKSBURY, March 1.—Mrs. Josephine Livingstone Meis, who drank aloshnibe and cantharnus in a Lynn hotel in an attempt to end her life, and who is critically ill at the Lynn Hospital, formerly lived with her cousin, Mrs. William Burtt, of Burtt's Crossing, in this town.

Mrs. Burtt, who is a cousin of ex-Mayor Low, of Brockton, said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"Josie had been at my house for nearly two weeks and left for Lynn only last Saturday. She seemed quite cheerful and bright as usual, although Friday, the day before she left, she had had a little bad spell, and with her heart when it seemed, she said, as though a hand clutched her throat and choked her.

"Josie has had a queer life, a very checkered career. Mrs. Meis must understand.

"When ever anything startling happened here at Burtt's Crossing we always knew Josie was at the bottom of it. She was engaged in one or two escapades of her mother's choice around here, but she threw them over.

"Her home is about a quarter of a mile down the road from here, but during the past year she has spent more time here than she has at home.

"Her mother is refined, well educated and ambitious and wanted Josie to become a teacher. Her father spent a good deal of money and sent her to a private school in Lawrence and to Lewiston, Me., Academy.

"But Josie didn't want to be a teacher and her mother was disappointed. She left home in 1893 Josie and she was going to the World's Fair to get work. Her mother also married Frank Meis, a chef in a hotel.

"Then none of us saw her for over five years. They lived in different cities of the West and finally went to New York about a year and a half ago. There Mr. Meis deserted Josie.

"She came home and, off and on, worked as cook and waitress in the Tewksbury Home, Lynn. It was a blow for Mrs. Livingstone to have her daughter do that kind of work. Josie got fine pay, for her husband had taught her how to cook splendidly.

"About two weeks ago she came to my house and said she would rather stay with me until she got a new position than to go home, for her mother wished her to go into Tewksbury Hospital as a nurse, and she didn't want to.

"She said she wanted to save money enough to get a divorce from her husband. Except for her one spell of heart trouble she seemed well and in good spirits.

"Once in a while she used to get blue over her trouble with her husband.

"I do hope Josie will get well, for, you see, she is very dear to me. Her mother went to the hospital today to see her, and I would go myself if my husband wasn't so invalid."

After being taken to the hospital Mrs. Meis said:

"I came from Chicago to Boston some time ago and registered at the Hotel Haymarket. For years I have been fighting an insane desire to kill myself and have tried to do it many times. Yesterday I made out to do so several and the desire to end my life came over me. I went to a hotel parlor and drank the laudanum I got in a drug store.

The Red Cross of Japan.

PROFIT BY AMERICAN LESSON.

WOMAN is forever a chief and inseparable factor in the warfare of nations. The Red Cross knows no friend, nor foe, nor does it recognize the word neutral. In Japan the Red Cross Society is under the patronage of the Empress of Japan. During Japan's war with China something like ten thousand women volunteered to go out as nurses to the front, and that number has been increased for service in the present campaign. There is no more efficient hospital service in the world than the Japanese for they have profited by the knowledge of American nurses.

Her rare appearance on the battlefield or in the hospitals—nursing, cheering and comforting the wounded or dying—is a very small part of what woman does to promote a country's fighting capacity. She does more than roll bandages, scrape lint and send out dainty boxes of provisions to husbands, brothers and sweethearts in the field.

The wives and mothers, and the sisters and sweethearts that will become wives and mothers—contribute something more in addition to this cheering comfort and inspiration.

Every male fighter, however brawny and heroic was born of woman; was once a feeble infant, drawing along with his very breath of life from his mother's own physical resources—the hardihood, mental stamina and high courage that becomes a nation's final and unpregnable defense in the last dread arbitrament of war.

Shall we say that women contribute the bandages and provisions? No: They contribute the fighters!

What sort of men will the women of this present day contribute to the nation and the world? What sort of help and encouragement and inspiration can a woman be who is enfeebled and broken down by the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to her sex? Can such a woman maintain the position that belongs to her on the battlefield of everyday existence with strength? Can she hope to be a capable mother or efficient wife?

The dreadful sufferings which women endure solely because of the delicate, special organization which makes them wives and mothers, leads a thoughtful person to consider whether it is most woefully deplorable on their own and account or for the sake of the other lives that are sooner or later dependent on their own.

It is certain that the great work which has been done toward establishing physical capacity of women in the last thirty-eight years, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., has had a phenomenal share in building up the courage and power of the present generation. But there are fifty thousand more women who ought to know what Dr. Pierce's extraordinary medical insight and experience—and his "Favorite Prescription" have done for their hopeless, discouraged sisters throughout the world.

Every woman knows that the average doctor cannot understand her case. He is too busy; he has too many other cases of an entirely different nature; he lacks the special experience and thorough understanding which are necessary to a complete appreciation of her troubles. A lifetime of experience and constant study has made Dr. Pierce the acknowledged expert authority in this particular field of practice. Write him at Buffalo, N.Y. Your letters will be held sacredly confidential and there is no charge for such consultation and advice.

PROFESSIONAL ADVICE.

Mrs. Mary J. Beard (Trained Nurse, Washington Hospital), of 926 6th St., N. W., Washington, D. C., writes: "I am satisfied that thousands of women suffer with the same troubles peculiar to our sex because they do not realize how much they really need treatment and feel a natural delicacy in consulting a physician.

"I felt badly for four years, had terrible pains at times and was often unable to be about attending to my duties; appetite was poor and sleep fitful. Tried to cure myself in various ways but without success, but finally my attention was called to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and I decided to try it. I certainly glad that I did for it began to improve with the first bottle and gradually became better until I was entirely cured of my trouble. Am well and can enjoy life once more."

BEFORE OR AFTER MARRIAGE

Persons of either sex should know themselves. Ignorance of the laws of SELF and SEX leads to folly and often to life-long illwoeth. Proper pertain FALSE modesty is fatal. Shield you from such knowledge. Know Thyself. Study the Laws of Generation. Physical and Vital Properties of the Blood, the Organs of Reproduction.

A great deal of sickness and many cases of quackery destroyed bills might be saved to families by knowing a copy of Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page common sense book, "The Common Sense Medical Adviser," a hand book of Generation. Physical and Vital Properties of the Blood, the Organs of Reproduction.

It gives valuable recipes for curing the diseases and ailments of others as well as self and other valuable information about Anatomy and Physiology all made clear by many illustrations. The Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to cover the cost of mailing only. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTIVE CRIMINALS

A bill providing for a set of buildings to be constructed at Rutland, Mass., at which consumptive criminals can be treated, has been introduced before the committee on prisons by Prison Commissioner Pettigrew. For more than three years Dr. Francis Donaghue has been agitating for better treatment of the consumptives under the care of the State and its successful in interesting the Prison Commissioner in the work.

In his inaugural message Governor Douglas called attention to the number of deaths in prisons and jails. He has made a close study of the matter and greater reforms may be looked for.

"While at present there are only about sixty consumptives in the various penal institutions, the number is constantly increasing. With this rational treatment it is hoped that the deaths will be greatly decreased. Dr. Donaghue regards the action of the Commissioner as a long step toward reformation, but that more than one step should be done.

"It is his wish to have a law passed forbidding the reception of those consumptives in the various prisons, and providing for a special camp for them, where they can be given the out-door treatment and where there will be no danger of spreading to healthy people.

"Attention has been called to the fact that under the present methods employed, a consumptive is allowed to mingle with others in the insane hospitals and that the disease may be, and doubtless is, carried to the outside world by patients who are discharged.

FIREMEN AND ENGINEERS TO BE RECONCILED

NEW HAVEN, March 1.—The representatives of the firemen and engineers of the New Haven road met here today to form a plan to bring about peace between the two orders. It was early announced that the settlement would result in the engineers' agreement to permit firemen to join their brotherhood without giving up their membership in the firemen's brotherhood. This will permit engineers who are members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen to have a voice in the selection of the Advisory Committee of Engineers, appointed from the Engineers' Brotherhood, with whom the New Haven road insists on adjusting all disputes with engineers. This is satisfactory to the firemen and will undoubtedly be accepted by them.

President Mellen makes the statement: "The last communication received from the firemen was a telephone message from Mr. Eben last Saturday, stating that the firemen and the engineers expected to adjust their controversy. This will be made now. I have no knowledge of the details of the proposed settlement, except as stated above and from what I have read in the newspapers.

"No committee is to be received by the company's management, so far as I know. The settlement is between the engineers and firemen, and what is acceptable to them will undoubtedly be acceptable to the company. From the beginning the company has maintained that the question at issue should be settled between the engineers and the firemen, and it seems probable that this opinion has been taken by the principals to the dispute."

MORE DELAY FOR NAN PATTERSON

NEW YORK, March 1.—Justice Gaynor, in the Brooklyn Supreme Court today reserved his decision in the application for a writ of certiorari in the case of Nan Patterson, the actress, charged with killing Caesar Young, the bookmaker.

SEVEN HURT IN WRECK.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., March 1.—Seven persons were injured, several of them badly, in a wreck on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad at Colfax, two miles from here, early today.

LABOR NEWS

LABOR PRINTING — TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL — BOSTON, MASS. — 96

"The time has gone by, with the present methods of carrying on our great productive industries, when men can do as they please with their labor," declared Harry Lloyd, at one time a general officer of the Carpenter's Union, in a defence of the "closed Shop" at a meeting in Wells Memorial Hall.

"The open shop has left Fall River where it is to-day. It has left one-half the mills in Boston, New York and other large cities where they are today.

"I never of a case in my twenty-five years' experience in the labor movement where any exception was taken to a non union workman becoming a member of the unions. This objection has always been made to non-unionists because of the non union wage and the non-union conditions they imposed upon those working to obtain a better livelihood.

"The experience of the union man has been that every small fraction of the trade can keep down the wages to the lowest possible point that at the time when the organized wage workers attempt to raise its wages, the non-unionists by co-operating with the employers, are able to carry on the business until the union and is starved into submission, whereupon, the wages, which were closely united, the employers would be unable to pay it and carry on the business." Mr. Lloyd emphasized the point that the wages of labor is the price of labor as a commodity to sell who has not a right to fix the price.

Unions Like Trusts.

Prof. T. N. Carver, of Harvard, who defended the "Open Shop" in its general principles, said opportunity to work should be free to all who were capable of taking advantage of it; that the individual could find his or her own level, and that any group of individuals could do it for him.

He favored the unions "closed shop," protectionism the "closed market," and the trust the "closed business" of the country.

"The closed shop, once secured, must not sooner or later, it will go the way of all other exclusive organizations—that the union will become a closed union. The organization, once getting a firm hold of the occupation, will have power to do as it pleases, and the members will prefer their own interests to the interests of others.

"There will be a large mass of workmen outside the unions, as there were outside the guilds in the Middle Ages. The difficulty of getting into the union will be one reason for this, and the fact that there are so many outside the unions, as there were outside the guilds, will tend to lower wages and make life harder."

ROOFERS INDORSE BOYCOTT.

Roofers' Union has indorsed the boycott which has been placed upon two second class hotels in this city. The members also voted to see that other roofing begins the bakers' label entered their households.

The union will be addressed by a physician from the Society for the Prevention and Cure of Tuberculosis March 28. Three new members were admitted.

LABOR NOTES.

Secretary-Treasurer Dennis D. Driscoll of the Sons of St. George, A. F. of L., has been giving the dates of hearings on legislative matters before the various committees.

Mayor Collins has been asked by Eugene Foss, 12 on his 80 post office to further the cause of the establishment of a municipal hospital for the treatment of consumptives.

Walter V. Batson will speak at tonight's meeting of Electrical Workers' Union No. 104 at Wells Memorial Building. This is the first in a series of meetings to be held during the agitation.

A movement to start a co-operative factory was indorsed at the meeting of Moulding and Picture Frame Makers' Union No. 33, March 28. Eleven members were admitted and seven applications acted.

WOMAN CAPTURED MAN WHO HAD INSULTED HER NIECES

HELD FELLOW UNTIL POLICE ARRESTED HIM

Collared South Boston Suspect and Mastered Him Despite His Struggles.

UNDER SPRINGFIELD BONDS

Special to the Boston American.

SPRINGFIELD, March 1.—Through the nerve and physical strength of a woman the police have in their hands here now, under bonds of $200, a man who says he is William F. Burke of South Boston, and who, it is believed, is responsible for insults to many young girls of this city. Mrs. Mary Whalen is the name of the woman who captured him. She swung on to his coat and struggled with him for several minutes, while her two nieces, who had been insulted, went for a policeman.

Mrs. Whalen lives at No. 106 Liberty street. Her pretty nieces, one fifteen, and other seventeen, were on their way to her house when they passed Burke. He made several insulting remarks, the girls say, which they repeated to their aunt. She told them to go back the same way and she trailed along behind. Again the insults were repeated.

Then Mrs. Whalen seized the man. He struggled, but she held him firmly while the girls went for a policeman, Charles A. Haynes. When the policeman arrived Mrs. Whalen still had her grip on Burke, and he was arrested. Later he was arraigned and held in $200, while the city marshal seeks further evidence against him.

Here is Mrs. Whalen's story of the capture:

"Do you suppose I would let any man insult my nieces? They are both good girls, one of them 15 and the other 17 and I have brought them up. When they told me that the man had insulted them I left the house and went toward the railroad station. Sure enough there he was and he again attempted to insult the girls. I grabbed him by the coat and held on while my nieces went for a policeman.

"Oh yes, he tried to get away, but it was no use, for I have dealt with his kind before. I haven't been working all the days for nothing and he found I had more strength than he bargained for. In any rate I am glad I got him for men such as he make it dangerous for any girl to be on the street."

MRS. MARY WHALEN.

SOCIETY AT THE HAWTHORNE CLUB SALE

Articles Made by Children Who Attend the Classes Readily Disposed Of.

APRIL WATER COLOR SHOW

Society's event for the day is the sale that the members of the Hawthorne Club are giving at their house, No. 3 Garland street, and which is being well patronized by the members of the local smart set. Tables for the sale of articles made by the children who attend the classes have been arranged in the attractive interior and the activities are meeting with a ready sale. Miss Margaret Codman, Miss Alice Gardiner, Mrs. W. B. Goodnow, Miss Alice West, Miss Gertrude Falvey, Miss Elizabeth Townsend, Miss Elizabeth Lane and Miss Sarah Otis Kroat are the members of the committee having the sale in charge. The success of the sale is due largely to the efforts of Miss Lillian V. Robinson of Marlboro street, who personally supervises the work at the club, and is one of the most active members.

That is the third sale that the club has had. On the tables are displayed baskets, dolls, sewing class, and a number of useful articles form the sewing and sloyd classes. The house has been thrown open for inspection and is well filled with members of the smart set, who are devoted to this charity.

One of the events of the Spring season that society is already anticipating is the annual display of the Water Color Club, which comes the middle of April. A number of prominent society people are identified with this club, and the reception given upon the exhibition is distinctly one of the society events of the Spring. Among the best known people who are connected with the club, and who in former years have done much toward making the display a success, are Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears, Mrs. George Lyman, Mrs. Thomas Motley, Miss Martha Sildon, Mrs. Leverett Bradlee, Mrs. William F. Houston, Miss Lucy C. Cousens, Miss Helen C. Hills, Miss Rose Turner, Dwight Blaney, George H. Hallowell, Dodge MacKnight and several others who are well known.

Water colors, pastels and sketches in black and white will constitute the exhibition this year, as in former years. The coming exhibition will be the twenty-second annual.

Among the recent festivities given at Palm Beach, Fla., and Mrs. Charles L. Craigin, of New York, who are well known to members of the Boston set, was a dinner at which the guest of honor was Francis Field, of this city. The Craigins are entertaining a house party this week, and besides Mr. Field they have with them Charles Lebon, also of this city. Their other guests include Mr. H. Holmes Smith, of Philadelphia, and Ernest Rankling, of New York.

From Kingston, Jamaica, comes the news that Boston is especially well represented by a number of society people. Among those who are there at present, some of whom are planning to remain until the end of spring, are F. F. Baldwin, C. Mitchell and Werner L. Knox, all of whom are thoroughly enjoying the fine automobiling that the island affords.

The social pleasures there are described as being very attractive for this time of the year when Boston people are shivering with zero weather. Tourists are thoroughly enjoying themselves, riding, automobiling, driving, resting themselves by a dip in the sea, at the popular hour of three in the afternoon, and dancing in the evening. Kingston is having a very popular season.

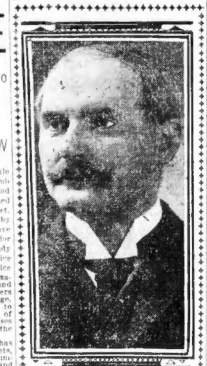
Miss Ruth Sprague of Boston is in Baltimore as the guest of Miss Jane Lee Bond. Her visit there for one week at 1004 Park Road made with her while Miss Sprague was on the North Shore last Summer.

J. B. DUKE SERIOUSLY ILL; BLOOD POISONING

NEW YORK, March 1.—James B. Duke, President of the American Tobacco Company, is ill at his residence in this city of blood poisoning, and three doctors are in attendance. His condition is said to be serious.

The trouble, it is stated, came from a corn which was removed several days ago.

KAISER'S GIFT FORMALLY PRESENTED TO HARVARD



DR. THEO. LEWALD.

PRESENTED KAISER'S GIFT.

Part of German Exhibit at St. Louis Fair Tendered by Commissioner Lewald.

In the Germanic Museum at Harvard, the latest gift of the Kaiser to the University, comprising that part of the German exhibit at St. Louis which relates to social echlen, was formally presented and will be installed in Emerson Hall when the new building is completed. There are models, maps, charts and books, covering the subject very widely.

The presentation was made by Commissioner Lewald and accepted by Professor Hugo Munsterberg for the department of philosophy. Dr. H. P. Wolcott presided. Ex-Secretary of the Navy Long was present, with all the professors of the philosophy department and many of the faculty.

After the exercises a collation was served in the museum.

Dr. Wolcott spoke first, on the value the Germanic Museum has been to the university. He was followed by Dr. Lewald, and Professor Munsterberg.

SEE DANGER IN TELEPHONE LEGISLATION

Opponents of Measures Say Power Like That of Gas Board Is Sought.

HEARING FRIDAY MORNING

Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock, in room 423 at the State House, the legislative Committee on Mercantile Affairs will give a hearing on three bills affecting telephone interests. Under the simple title of "An act relative to the charges and service of companies engaged in the transmission of intelligence by electricity" three forks, in the opinion of those who have made a study of the bill, dangerous legislation, inasmuch as the proposed law would create a telephone commission with powers as arbitrary as those of the gas commission.

The dangerous features of the act, as pointed out by the opponents, is section 8, which says that when a telephone company desires to carry on its business in any city or town in which another company is carrying on the same business is situated, it must secure permission from the board of telephone commissioners, in addition to securing the same permit from the local authorities. The men opposed to this act say that it is aimed a give one company a monopoly of the telephone business and shut out new and competing companies. The similar companies will be represented at the hearing as remonstrants.

Another bill to be heard Friday is offered by Representative P. W. Thayer of Boston. It provides for the appointment of a State board of telephone commissioners by the Governor, and to be supported by the telephone companies, which shall regulate the rates and service of the companies.

The third bill is submitted by Representative F. S. Dierrick of Cambridge, and provides for the appointment of a committee by the Governor to investigate the public service rendered by telephone and telegraph companies and report in what way it can be improved and its cost to the public lessened.

FUNERAL OF OLD CAMBRIDGE MAN

The funeral of Timothy O'Connell, an old resident of Cambridge and Somerville, was held to-day at the house of his daughter, Mrs. Alfred Shinet, Linwood street, Somerville.

From the house the body was taken to St. Joseph's Church, where services were held. The interment was in Holyhood Cemetery, Brookline.

The deceased was a native of Macroom, County Cork, Ireland, and came to this country in 1858. Three brothers, two sons and five daughters survive him. All are residents of Boston or the immediate vicinity.

Mr. O'Connell was well known and popular. The floral tributes showed plainly the esteem in which he was held.

WORKMEN PAY $100,000 AND QUIT MAIN BODY

Bitter Fraternal Conflict Is Ended to New England's Advantage.

LITIGATION IS ABANDONED

After years of bitter contention with the Supreme Lodge, the Grand Lodge of New England, A. O. U. W., now in session here, has definitely cut loose from the national organization by the payment of $100,000 to the Supreme Lodge in full settlement of all amounts due. A full statement of the negotiations, just concluded, was made by Grand Master John Symonds of Lynn, nominated for re-election by a unanimous vote.

Massachusetts Led Fight.

The fight arose on a question of he jurisdiction of the Supreme Lodge over the New England lodges, the Massachusetts Workmen taking the lead in the movement for greater freedom, which was approved by all the New England lodges. Suits were brought by both parties to the light, there was a hot contest for the possession of the books, which was won by the New England Grand Lodge, and it also won triumphantly in an attempt by the Supreme Lodge to get the personal funds of the Grand Lodge and elect officers in sympathy with the plan of the national organization.

It is agreed in the terms of settlement that all pending suits brought by both parties shall be discontinued, and no suit shall be brought by either party against any A. O. U. W. member on account of anything appearing prior to the signing of the agreement, while the Grand Lodge of New England is to retain jurisdiction of all subordinate lodges united with it a year ago.

Officers Elected.

The following officers were nominated for the ensuing year:

John Symonds, grand master workman; James W. Wilberg, grand foreman; James J. Brady, grand overseer; Charles S. Fearing, grand secretary; Thomas C. Temple, grand financier; finance committee, James Kelly, Harvey T. Buck and Hiram H. King. Other nominations were: Guides, John J. Sullivan, William H. Hickey and James W. Davis; inside watchmen, Richard Ridley and George H. Hayward; outside watchmen, Walter W. Brown, James Davenport and Walter J. Pegg; committee on laws, Shuree B. Symonds, Lynn, three years; Joseph Kelley, Boston, two years; Frank Bowers, H. Browning and George A. Messer, one year.

FOR SALE OF OLD CHURCH

Property Sold to Make Room for Addition to Public Library.

The old Church of the Covenant, on Boylston street, Boston, has been sold to the trustees of the Public Library, and will be torn down to make room for the new addition to the library. The property was sold by the Church of the Covenant, which has been merged with the Church of the Unity, and the sale was made through Edward Hutchinson Robbins, real estate agent, 53 State street.

SAYS THE BEEF TRUST MENACES PUBLIC HEALTH

London Lancet Commissioner Reports Shocking Conditions in Stock Yards.

CHICAGO, March 1.—Agitation against the Beef Trust has been started in Great Britain by the London Lancet, which recently sent a special sanitary commissioner here to investigate the stockyards. In his summing up of the findings, he writes:

"The whole nation should rise and insist upon the sweeping out of those truly unclean stables known as the Chicago stockyards.

"The municipality of Chicago should build a modern slaughter houses according to modern principles of sanitary science.

"A law should be enacted prohibiting private slaughter houses.

"The conditions of the Chicago packing industry affect the health of the entire world.

"The conditions prevailing within this giant industry are almost inconceivable.

"The larger death rate prevailing within the stockyards district is due to the conditions of employment, and not to the dwellings of the workers.

"As the Chicago stockyards I could not but feel scandalized and humiliated," he says on this point, "when I saw the foul and abominable premises in which the representatives of science, the representatives of the United States of America, the representatives of the majesty of law, committees of the people, descend to work daily in the accomplishment of their mission. This mission would be better accomplished if the veterinary surgeons, as members of a liberal profession and as representatives of a great country, refused to work in those noisome places. Such a course would at once stop the present abominations by compelling the hog purchasers to reconstruct their premises.

"Conditions that favor the spread of tuberculosis also favor the spread of other diseases, and in Packingtown these conditions are to be found in the work that the people do rather than in any exceptionally insanitary dwellings.

"From America to all parts of the world large quantities of these Chicago prepared meats are exported. If infection can be spread through meat, then what a danger such an establishment might become to the world at large.

"As already explained, anything like a thorough disinfection of the premises is impossible, and is never attempted. Nor can natural disinfection take place, because daylight and the direct rays of the sun cannot reach the greater part of the interior of the building where the work is done, the meat is handled, and tuberculosis intermingle expectorate.

"That the surroundings are foul, that in any case there is something wrong in the conditions of the work or of the workers is shown by the fact that the smallest scratch or cut will result in blood poisoning."

OIL TRUST FOE, GEORGE RICE, DIES, AGED 65

Man Who Fought Standard Oil Company for Twenty Years Succumbs to Bronchitis.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., March 1.—George Rice, for twenty years the implacable enemy of the Standard Oil Company, died at a cottage here on Monday last from bronchitis, caused by an attack of grip and general breakdown. His death was kept secret by his relatives, as there were in his rooms at the Astor House, New York, a number of papers which his relatives feared might be obtained by persons antagonistic to his interests.

Mr. Rice has been keeping the Standard Oil Company in more or less hot water for two decades. He was formerly an independent oil man of Ohio. Time and again he has brought the Standard Oil Company into court, and was the author of the famous book "Black Death," circulated in the oil country some years ago, which dealt with the methods of the oil trust.

He was sixty-five years old and had lived in the Astor House, New York, for several years. A little over a week ago he came to Asbury Park, to try to regain some of the vitality lost through worry over the fact that his efforts to secure reparation from the oil trust was thrown out of court in Trenton in December. He had a cold, which developed into grip.

NO JIU-JITSU AT POINT.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Congress, in conference over the military academy bill struck out a provision appropriating an annual salary for an instructor to teach Jiu Jitsu to the cadets.

REWARD FOR STOLEN BONDS

Herman S. Cheney has now offered a reward for the return of his Needham bonding $285,000 worth of securities. While the amount which will be paid is not stated, Mr. Cheney has announced that "a reasonable reward will be given for the return of the original certificates of stock, notes, mortgages, etc."

This action on Mr. Cheney's part seems to indicate that he has given up all hope of recovering his property by means of the police.

The attorneys who have been directing the search, Messrs. McPherson, Hyde and Burnett, have turned the whole matter, with such meagre evidence as they have collected, over to the State police, and the search will hereafter be prosecuted under the direction of Chief Shaw.

Mr. Cheney has succeeded in duplicating most of the securities, though his missing property never turn up he will lose about $10,000 instead of $285,000, as in the final record. There are about $10,000 worth of negotiable securities which cannot be replaced.

CREAM AND CIDER FATAL

Mrs. James Collins, forty-six years old, of 16 Winter street, West Somerville, ate a cream puff and drank cider and milk last Friday. She was taken violently ill early the next morning.

To-day she is dead and the attending physician said death was caused by ptomaine poisoning. Mrs. Collins leaves a husband and two children. The body will be taken to Prince Edward Island for burial.

MILLIONAIRE OF HUB WEDS IN CALIFORNIA

RIVERSIDE, Cal., March 1.—Miss Harriet Laurie Colgate, daughter of William H. Colgate, of New York city, a millionaire manufacturer, has been married to George F. Messerey, a Boston millionaire. The ceremony was performed in All Saints Episcopal Church by Rev. Dr. R. Heber Newton, D.D., of New York, who is spending the Winter here.

TORTURED BY ECZEMA

Whole Body Mass of Sores—Could Not Sleep—Had Given Up Hope of Recovery.

CURED BY CUTICURA

Spent Hundreds of Dollars Trying Every Doctor in Neighborhood, but Kept Growing Worse All the Time—Completely and Permanently Cured by Cuticura at Expense of $8.

"I have been tempted a number of times to write to you a voluntary letter telling how Cuticura Remedies saved the life of my mother, Mrs. William F. Davis, living in Stony Creek, Conn.

"Some years ago she had Eczema, the worst case I have witnessed in my life. She was able to sleep only a little, scarcely ate at all, and how she kept alive was a wonder. She had tried every doctor in the neighborhood, but kept growing worse all the time. Her head was a mass of sores, the ears swollen and painful, and the disease spread until it appeared on almost her entire body. It affected her hands and wrists and made housework out of the question. So bad was her condition at this time that she despaired of a recovery.

"Finally, after she had spent hundreds of dollars without receiving any benefit, living in misery for years, with hair whitened from pain and suffering, and body terribly disfigured, a friend came to her and told her she would get the Cuticura Remedies if she would use them. But mother was discouraged and without hope. She said, 'Nothing will cure me, I must die with it.' However, she began using the Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent, and when she had used three bottles of Resolvent, five boxes of Cuticura Ointment and ten cakes of Cuticura Soap, she was entirely cured. Her hair returned to its natural color, dark brown, and she looked ten years younger. I have written telling you of this because I feel it a duty to my fellowmen to let them know of this wonderful cure by Cuticura.

"Having mother's case in mind, I have often recommended Cuticura to those suffering with humors. While living in Hartford, Conn., I had the pleasure of knowing a number of friends who were wonderfully cured by Cuticura.

"Here in New York I have just been to see a young man who has been sorely afflicted with a terrible humor. He tells me that Cuticura Soap, Ointment and three bottles of Cuticura Resolvent cured him. I could give you the names of six or seven others for whom Cuticura has worked remarkable cures. Now, feeling that I have done my duty, I shall be pleased if you will publish this letter."

Walsh to Meet Feltz

Readville Track Meets

ATHLETICS

JIMMY WALSH WILL BATTLE TOMMY FELTZ

It is expected that one of the greatest mills ever seen in this part of the State will take place when Jimmy Walsh and Tommy Feltz clash before the Dorgan A. C. on March 7. The ring will hold up 115 pounds.

There has been dickering for some time between the managers of both lads, and it was only after a great deal of argument that they fixed upon the weight.

The fact that Walsh is going to fight Feltz at 117 pounds will make some fans ask why he wouldn't make that weight for Rouse O'Brien. Eddie Keevin says that he has been waiting to hear from O'Brien in regard to the 115-pound weight and $50 wager. Keevin says if O'Brien can't make that weight he will let Walsh agree to 118.

CYCLISTS ASK SUSPENSION BE RAISED

NEW YORK, March 1.—The National Cycling Association, at its seventh annual meeting at the Hotel Barthold, concurred in the action of the Board of Control in suspending the riders who quit during the December six-day race in Madison Square Garden. Robert Walthour and James Moran asked that their suspension for one year be modified, changed to a fine or compromised.

Applications for franchises were received from New Haven, Bridgeport and Waterbury, Conn., and were granted. These cities will be in the Grand Circuit, which also will include Hartford, Charles River Park, Cambridge, Mass.; Revere Beach, Mass.; Vallejo, Cal.; Manhattan Beach, N. Y.; Paterson, N. J.; Baltimore and Washington.

READVILLE TO HOLD FIRST MEET AUG. 1

Readville has arranged to give its first meeting this year, with purses of $600, August 1 to 4. This will leave Saugus free to use the second and third weeks of July, which it has occupied for two years, the dates being July 11 to 14 and 18 to 21. Dover will probably make use of the week July 25 to 28.

The Grand Circuit meeting at Readville occurs August 21 to 26. The meeting the first week in August will be only a Grand Circuit races three weeks later, and it also is of importance to Providence and Hartford.

By the terms of agreement between members of the Grand Circuit a track within five hundred miles of another cannot give a meeting the same week with purses amounting to over $6000.

HARVARD "H'S" TO ORGANIZE A NEW BODY

The permanent organization of the "H" men in Harvard is to be completed this evening, when all members of the university who are entitled to wear the "H" will meet in the Union.

The four captains, Burley, of the football team; Randall, of the nine; Filler, of the crew, and Schick, of the track team, with President Orcutt, of the senior class, compose the committee which has formulated a plan of organization to present to the meeting to-night. The object of the organization is to foster closer alliance of the four major sports. Men who have won the "H" in any of them and are still in the university are eligible. The first move was last December when the men met at a dinner and discussed plans. The result was the appointment of the committee.

Sailor Sharkey Is Willing to FIGHT FRANK GOTCH

BY TOM SHARKEY.

NEW YORK, March —Frank Gotch, the champion catch-as-catch-can wrestler, who is the latest aspirant for fistic honors, is a likely looking athlete. I saw the big Westerner in action for the first time yesterday afternoon and his great development impressed me greatly.

Whether Gotch will meet with as much success in the ring as he has in the wrestling game remains to be seen. It does not follow that a champion wrestler can wallop a champion fighter or achieve any great success in that ring. I don't mean to say that Gotch will never be a great fighter. He may, surprise us all, yet, if he fails he will only have followed in the footsteps of other wrestlers of great fame who sought pugilistic laurels.

One thing, Gotch has many advantages over others who had championship aspirations and failed. In fact, he has many things in his favor. In appearance he is a sleek, trim athlete, and is built in many ways more like a fighter than a wrestler. He is not short and stocky, with strong, heavy legs like Roeber and others that have preceded him. His legs are strong and sinewy, but they have the length which tends to give them speed.

Gotch Has a Long Reach.

Gotch is a six-footer in height—a fine height for a fighter, and has a long reach. In fact, he has a reach as long as any fighter I ever fought. I found this very speedy and clever with his hands. Gotch knows a great deal about the boxing game, and the longer he keeps at it the more he will improve.

He is a young fellow yet, and there is every evidence in his make-up that he has taken the best of care of himself ever since he has been following professional sports. Gameness is an essential qualification in a fighter, and there is no doubt but Gotch is game after the many gruelling matches he has gone through successfully in the mat. There are wrestling matches far more brutal than boxing matches.

There is no reason why Gotch should not improve greatly, so long as he has the speed. He undoubtedly possesses great endurance, for he has taken part in continuous matches which have lasted two hours without a rest.

Sharkey Willing to Meet Gotch.

While I have had the pleasure of trying Gotch out, there is nothing like having a real earnest set-to. I should advise him not to limit Jeffries right off the reel. Before Gotch can take on a few of the other fellows who have already fought the champion. Then if he is successful he will prove that he is a fighter. In the meantime this experience will go far to aid him in a fight for the championship.

If a suitable purse were offered I would like to take Gotch on myself. If he defeats me I will be convinced that he is a better fighter than he is a wrestler. If he does not feel inclined to meet me in a ring contest I will wrestle him in any way in a handicap match for a side bet. I will wager any amount that he cannot throw me twice in an hour.

MACK'S BRAVES ARE OFF FOR NEW ORLEANS

Special to the Boston American.

PHILADELPHIA, March 1.—In a happy frame of mind, twenty members of the Philadelphia American club, in charge of Connie Mack, left to-day for New Orleans. Two others, Pitchers Henley and Coakley, will join the squad at New Orleans.

Four games will be played with the New Orleans club, beginning next Saturday, after which Manager Mack will take the team to Shreveport, where they will train for a fortnight.

NEW YORK, March 1.—There were many sad good-byes spoken when the members of the local American League baseball team left Manager Mack, Jr., for their training. Griff's men will remain in Montgomery, Ala., for three days, going thence to New Orleans, Baton Rouge, Jackson, Miss., Macon and Atlanta, Ga., and these home: C. G. A., Matheson, Wilts, Bowerman, Dahlen and Lange will be among the players of the New York National baseball team who will leave this city to-morrow for their Southern training trip. They will travel by the Savannah line, and will go from Savannah to Birmingham to play from March 15 to 26.

FIFTY-SEVEN ENTRIES FOR A. A. U. BOUTS

There are fifty-seven entries for the National Amateur Boxing tourney, which will be held in Mechanics building next Monday night. Fifteen are from New York, two from Pennsylvania, and forty that are scattered throughout New England, with Boston and suburbs in the lead. In fact, the entry list is so large that the preliminaries may be held in the afternoon, while the finals and semi-finals will be held in the evening.

The local committee has arranged all the plans for the event and has decided upon the following list of officials: Referee, Neil J. Doherty; ex. Frank B. Peters, B. A. A.; timers, Charles J. Hickey, New York A. C., and Hugh C. McGrath, St. J. A. A.; judges, Eugene Dening, B. A. A.; Edward J. Flynn, C. G. A., and Thomas Naughton, C. G. A.; clerk, Francis A. McGrath; assistants, E. F. Walsh, B. S. A., and C. J. Foley; announcer, Lambridge; M. C., A. L. Walsh, Neil J. Keleher, C. G. A.; Jerome H. Moore, B. A., and S. C. W. C. Carpenter, Boston; and Thomas Conrick, C. G. A.; announcer, Jerry Cooney; referee at the Arlington, Dr. T. F. O'Connor, St. Alphonsus A. A.

NEW BLEACHERS AT CHAMPS' GROUNDS

The bleachers on the bank in left field at the American League grounds, Huntington avenue, will be finished by the end of the week and will accommodate 3,500. This will give the Champ batting ground a seating capacity of 20,000, which is one of the largest in the country.

Many other improvements will be made before the Collinsites play their first home game. A new press box, a ladies' waiting room and outlets for the large crowds are other innovations in the course of contemplation.

Genial Captain Jimmy Collins and President Taylor spent the greater part of the day superintending things at the grounds. The "Buffalo Star" seemed pleased with the way things were looking, and predicted the greatest season in the history of the game.

Duke Farrell will leave for Washington to-day, where he will take in the inauguration ceremonies. He will stay in Washington until March 11, when he will join the team.

NEED ONLY CAR-FARE TO SEE RACES

Special to the Boston American.

NEW ORLEANS, March 1.—Railbirds have been enjoying some exceedingly fine racing during the past week at ten cents per performance, and thus far no heads have been broken. On account of the war that is brewing between the two tracks, the entire out and back to the tracks from the city is all that is required to see the ponies do their stunts, and from present appearances there is no likelihood of this good thing stopping for many days to come.

But the clubs must be losing money, and it simply remains to be seen which organization will be able to withstand the heavy drain the present rate brings.

With practically no revenue obtainable except that which is received from the betting books in the betting ring, the layers have suddenly leaped into a prominence which has hitherto been grudgingly accorded them and their patronage, as eventually playing an important part in the financial result, has been regarded lightly by the management of both tracks.

During the past week, and of the week, in fact up to Saturday, the Fair Grounds people had the call, and nightly Jeffries argument, having eighteen books on their track, entire out and back to the tracks from the city is all that is required to see the ponies do their stunts, and from present appearances there is no likelihood of this good thing stopping for many days to come.

"There is no chance of a compromise," said Ed Corrigan, manager of the City Park race track, to-day. "Impossible is out of the question. The only compromise I will accept is the one on the same lines offered to General Stoessel at Port Arthur by the Japanese."

SMALL TALK FOR BASEBALL FANS

As the Atlanta baseball club will not report for practice until the Clevelands have been domiciled in the Georgia metropolis for over a week, Manager Lajoie has succeeded in arranging a game with the team representing Georgia Tech., one of the best college baseball teams in the South. The game will be played Saturday, March 11, and Lajoie expects to send three of his twirlers into the box. Hess and Rhoades will have arrived two days before, and both of them, as well as Bernhard, of Fort Worth recruit, will have a chance to work out three innings. Buelow and Clarke will do the catching, as Bemis will probably go to the other box that will remain with the older twirlers at Hot Springs.

Pat Hynes, the Browns' right fielder, is the latest one of the Chicago Reds to sign. His contract turned up at the St. Louis American League headquarters yesterday.

Like the other members of the Browns' pay roll, Hynes has received an increase in salary, and he declares that he is perfectly satisfied with the way he has been treated by both Hedges and Manager Jones.

Put him great admirer of McAleer, and says Jimmy is the greatest boy in baseball. He declares that during all the time he worked under McAleer he was well treated, and he says that the Browns' manager exercised tact and encouragement.

Sundays will be days of rest with the Clevelanders at Atlanta. This will be rather a novel experience for the boys, as the Blues trained at New Orleans in 1902 and 1903, and they played games every Sunday. Atlanta, however, is not a Sunday baseball town, and as for Manager Lajoie, he has not received any complaints from the players on that score.

When the season of 1906 opens, the Chicago Nationals will have one of the best outfields in baseball. Every player on the team has the choice of one player of an entire baseball club. That is, Chance can have for one silver dollar. One dollar is a very small price for such a player, but when it is cut out of a club's batting, but there is a reason for the bargain basement sale. It is with Manager Harrie of the Frisco team.

President Hart released Pitcher Whalen to the Frisco club. The Coast club was in need of a twirler. Manager Harris notified Hart that if he would let the Frisco club have Whalen he would return the price Hart paid for the pitcher, or let the Frisco club have the right to give to him the choice of any player on the team for half price.

Hart accepted Harris's generous offer, and will be allowed to select any player on the Frisco team after the close of the 1905 campaign.

The champion giants for 1905 will not want for modern attributes as there is to be a physician in Manager McGraw's line-up.

It is not generally known that Archie Graham, the new head doctor of the Giants, is a disciple of Esculapius, like his fellow-townsman, Dr. Arlington. Pond, whose name adorned the roster of Ed. Hanlon's four-time champions of Baltimore a few years ago.

Manager Ed Ashenbach, who is given credit for the discovery of Christy Mathewson, has the following to say of Graham:

"I want to see a match race between Graham and Harry Bay. All the money will go down on Graham in such an event, for I believe that the new Giant can make Bay look like a man tied to a stake when it comes to scoring ground. I have seen Bay run, and I have seen Graham on my team, and I can say without flattering my fellow-countryman, Graham is a physician, and acquired his medical education at the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore.

"I took the old cleveland team down to a little town in Southern Ohio for a Sunday game one time when I had charge of such stuff," says Frank Bancroft. "As we got off the train I said to the station agent, 'Any danger of the game being stopped by the authorities?'

"'No, I guess not,' he said. 'I'm the mayor of this here village and I'm going to see that game or bust.'

"I wasn't quite satisfied, so I asked the boss driver the same question.

"'Don't worry,' he replied. 'All of us councilmen—bodding toward two hewbits kerred men who sat on the seat beside him, 'are going to the game in a body.'

"When we got to the hotel the early church goers were coming and I thought I would make assurance doubly sure. So I said to the landlord:

"'We are not taking any risks, are we, in playing here to-day?'

"'Risks? I should say not. But any fellow who tries to stop that game will be walking around with a darn big one. I'm the village constable.'

Charles Hickman intends to get back that batting eye of his, if there is any thing that "Chesapeake Hick" enjoys it is to knock a pitcher out of the box, and one of his timely hits when a run is needed. He made a hit in the game with Cleveland in 1902 and 1903, and always managed to get a hit off the Cleveland pitcher, but he believes that he has sound the knocks. This year he will be in the game the season with a crate of brand new bats. They are the very best, and he has tried and no one is permitted to get within twenty feet of them until they are dried out. But Hickman took Buelow to the side and showed him the bats. The Cleveland catcher nearly dropped from heart disease when he began to count the seven in the crate, but lost track of them.

"Say, Hickman," he said, "what are you going to do with all of them?" was finally the first remark after a minute's breathless silence.

"Why, I have a little grudge to settle," says Mr. Hickman. "You are saying so much about Bernhard, Moore, Joss, Hess and Rhoades that I am afraid that some of you will glance at the schedule you will find that Detroit opens the season in Cleveland. Well, I intend to put that quintet of twirlers out in the first three games, and it will be done with those bats. Yes, I am going to take a chance on the first two or four from Cleveland in the opening series, and I am willing to bet that the manager Armour will be pleased. Then I can give the rest of the team a chance."

"Don't worry, old boy, you will be lucky if you get even one hit in those four games. I will take a little pity on you and give a signal for the kind you like, but I will bet that you will not get a chance to see that you make a hit," was all that Buelow would say.

* * *

In a game of baseball last season six hits were made in one inning, two threebaggers and four singles, yet no runs were scored.

How did it happen?

The first man up got a three-base hit, but was caught at home trying to make a home run. The second batter did the same, making two hits and two outs. The next three men got short singles, filling the bases. The sixth batter hit out in left between first and second, but the ball hit the runner, who was going down to second, and he was declared out. According to the rules, however, the man who hits the ball is entitled to a single.

COLE TO MEET SAM LANGFORD AT CHELSEA

George Cole, of Philadelphia, and Sam Langford, of Cambridge, are the boxers who will provide amusement for the fans of the Dudley A. C. in the main bout of fifteen rounds Friday night. The club had originally carded the Dixie Kid against Langford, but as the former won't be able to get to this city, a substitute was found for him.

* * *

Young Collins of Charlestown wants to meet any of the 112-pound boys in New England and picks out Billy Quinn, Jimmy Barry or Ralph Kelly.

Joe Gendron, the fast bantam from Nashua, is the first to come forward and challenge Scotty Orme of Manchester, N. H., and he says that such a match would settle the bantam championship of New Hampshire. Gendron wants to box at 112 pounds.

* * *

Shy Fay wants to match his boy, Young Duffey or Young Carter, and any of the trio are acceptable to him, as he considers the purse a sure thing for him.

Jimmy Hanlon's manager, Mattie Dooley, has heard that Young Schindler is not satisfied with the way Jimmy beat him on Washington's Birthday, and says that he is ready to match his boy against the Hebrew for fifteen rounds for any part of $1,000.

If Johnny Mahan, Johnny Powers, or any of the 115-pound boys are looking for a match they can find plenty of it in Jimmy Barry of Cambridge, who is waiting to take them up.

Black Fitzsimmons is now under the management of Arthur Nolan, the Collinsville Butcher, and challenges any man in New England at 115 pounds. He professes George Gunther, Charley O'Rourke, George Brooks or Young Gardner or Gardus Hyde of Providence in twenty rounds or forfeit all right to the purse.

Harry Allen of Chelsea comes out with a challenge to Kid Barrish, Young Pope of Revere or any of the bantam boys who will come to the limit weight.

Kid Barrish will match up with Scotty Coyne, the Manchester, N. H., scrapper, the sooner the better as the Kid is in fine fighting form now.

For one of the old time hard fistic battles, the bout Friday night at the Douglas A. C. between Kid Barrish and the Dixie Kid should be the limit. Both men have terrific wallops and they are not afraid to take a good drubbing. Any man who can claim a decision over Joe Wolcott deserves considerable credit, and Barrish had a draw with the Black Demon, the two men must be pretty well matched. Langford has had every thing his own way as he has proved two cheap skates and simply went out for points but he is up against something of his own kind in the Dixie Kid and this time is due to get his'n.

DORCHESTER HIGH'S GAMES

The second annual games of Dorchester High School will be held in the school yard this afternoon, and will consist of exercises by the girls, high jump, broad jump and other field games, running high jump, putting the shot, basketball and relay races between the different classes. The school will have a big rooting section and two boxing games as Mechanics building Saturday.

CARR IS ANXIOUS TO MEET DELMONT

Why is Albert Delmont sidestepping Ed. Carr? That's a question troubling many of the friends of the Charlestown boy, who stands ready to meet him. Here is Carr willing and anxious to meet Delmont, who is being touted as an opponent for Jimmy Walsh, and he has yet to prove that he is a better boy than Carr. Carr is perfectly willing to meet the Medford boy at any of the clubs and prove conclusively that he has more right to take up with Jimmy Walsh than Delmont.

CAMBRIDGE MAY HAVE BOXING

If present plans are carried out, boxing will be resumed in Cambridge, and the old quarters of the Union A. C. will be utilized for the purposes of exhibitions of the manly art. It is possible that Young Schindler and Jimmy Hanlon will meet in a ten-round battle before the club, which has yet to be named, next Monday. Jack Orme of the old Union A. C. or Cambridge A. A. directors are identified with the new club in any way.

ROSE AND COE WILL COMPETE

A special shot-putting contest has been arranged for the big athletic carnival of the Illinois A. C., which will be held in the Chicago Coliseum, March 28, and Wesley W. Coe, Jr., the shot-putter of Yale, who missed the intercollegiate title with a put of 49 feet 2½ inches, will compete against Ralph Rose, the Western star. The latter has beaten Coe twice since at St. Louis last Summer, and again at the A. A. A. games in this City, February 11.

FISHER LEAVES HUB.

Manager Billy Rogers of the Boston Nationals announced to-day that Tom Fisher had been released to the Shreveport, La., club. Fisher was not a successful pitcher in this city, and twirled some very poor games.

JACK MUNROE LOSES.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 1.—M. Dwyer got the decision over Jack Munroe in a wrestling contest before the Birmingham A. C., winning two falls out of three.

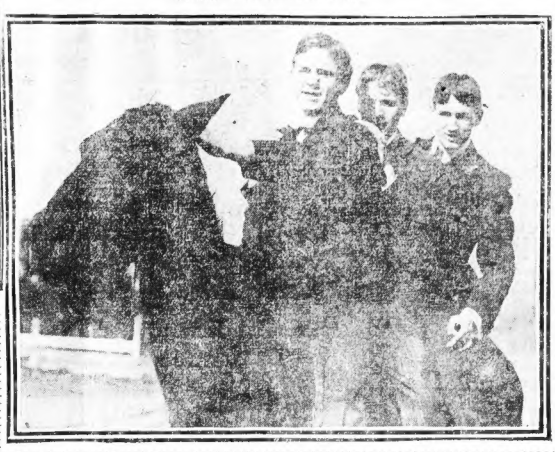
BAT NELSON By Victory Over "Young Corbett" WILL Now Have Another Chance to FIGHT In Frisco Ring Very Soon JIM BRITT

HOW NELSON AND "YOUNG CORBETT" GOT INTO SHAPE FOR THEIR BATTLE IN SAN FRANCISCO

"CORBETT" SPARRING WITH PARTNER.

NELSON OUT FOR A NOVEL RIDE.



"CORZETT'S" FAMOUS UPPERCUT.

"CORBETT'S" SECONDS THREW UP THE SPONGE

DENVERITE WAS BEING BADLY PUNISHED WHEN THEY ENDED THE BOUT.

Special to the Boston American.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 1.—Time was called for the bout between Nelson and "Corbett" at 10:18 o'clock.

FIRST ROUND—Nelson feinted and Corbett danced around. It was a full half minute before either man led. Then Nelson was short with left for chin. Corbett swung right on ribs. Nelson put left on body, right on ribs; another clinch. Nelson caught Corbett with left on nose. Corbett put lefts on mouth and Nelson hooked his left on jaw. Nelson put straight left on mouth. Corbett put right on body. A clinch. Corbett hooked Nelson twice on face with left. Nelson stopped right-hand body blow with his elbow. In a half-clinch Nelson rammed both fists in on the stomach. Corbett rushed, putting left on jaw and driving right in over the heart. Nelson's nose was bleeding.

SECOND ROUND IN CORBETT'S FAVOR.

ROUND TWO—Corbett tried right to ribs and found Nelson's elbow. They went into half-clinch. Corbett began hooking with both hands right on Nelson's face. Nelson got in a left and right on body before they hung on, the crowd shouting "Break." Corbett's seconds should for him to steady himself, but he mixed it, both using hooks and uppercuts. Corbett jumped away and made vicious swings with his right and caught Nelson twice back of the ear. Nelson sent in heavy right on ribs. The round was slightly in Corbett's favor.

NELSON STRONGER, BUT HONORS EVEN.

ROUND THREE—Corbett backed away. Nelson followed steadily. Corbett tried a left and right for the body, was short, and they clinched. Nelson's elbow stopped a right. Corbett missed right for ribs, and Nelson smashed in right on neck. A clinch, during which Nelson tried hard to free his arms and punch. Nelson put in two hard ones, a left and a right on the face. Nelson was much stronger. Nelson poked in a straight left. Corbett closed with him. Nelson went to knees in a clinch. Nelson was very handy, stopping body blows with his elbows. They had a long, fierce mix. Corbett catching Nelson on the body with swinging rights. Nelson uppercut Corbett with both hands, and "Spider" Kelly kept yelling to Corbett to steady himself. There was nothing to choose at this stage.

CORBETT MAKES NELSON'S KNEES BEND.

ROUND FOUR—Corbett reached the side of Nelson's head with left, and they clinched. Nelson pushed Corbett around and poked him in the ribs with right. Corbett's left swings were going too high, just brushing Nelson's hair. Nelson shot in a straight left on the mouth. They drew apart and eyed each other. Corbett put in two lefts on the side of the head. Nelson uppercut him with a right in a clinch. Nelson sent in some fierce punches in body. Corbett bent down and drew away. Then he straightened and swung full force right on ribs. They went close again, grappled and punched. Nelson used body blows and Corbett landed left and right swings for face. A left from Corbett made Nelson's knees bend just before the gong.

DANE HAS STRONG LEAD AT END.

ROUND FIVE—They went into a clinch and broke without striking. Corbett jumped in with left on face and clinched. Corbett swung left hard on cheek. They scuffled around the ropes. Corbett put in three lefts on stomach, then missed a right swing. Nelson landed a hard right on ear. Corbett was there with right on ribs, and Nelson countered on chin with right. Corbett reached the body with some heavy right-handers. Nelson put in some hard right-hand body punches and backed Corbett to the ropes with left and right fancers. Corbett's mouth was bleeding. He seemed to be hurt. Nelson kept reaching him with left hooks on face. Corbett got in his favorite punch, a full swing right on jaw, but it did not fease Nelson. The Dane had a strong lead at the gong sounded.

CORBETT'S BLOWS LOSING STRENGTH.

ROUND SIX—Nelson rushed Corbett to the latter's corner. Corbett covered up and broke away. Nelson pressed Corbett around the ring and in a clinch forced him to his knees. Corbett swung left on eye and left to ribs. Corbett put in another right on ribs. Nelson forced him to the ropes and got home left and right on the face. Corbett swung a left on the jaw and put in a right over his heart. His blows seemed to be losing strength. Nelson was cool and watchful and got in jarring left-handers on face. He carried Corbett to the ropes with a right to the body and then smashed him on the face. Corbett was striking back, but did not seem to be hurting his opponent. Nelson was beating Corbett along the ropes when the round ended.

CORBETT HITTING WILD AND WEAKLY.

ROUND SEVEN—Corbett trying to get at close quarters. Nelson hooked him with both hands. Nelson kept his left arm half extended and shot in hard face blows, which only travelled a few inches. He varied this with rasping right hooks on the stomach. Corbett backed around the ropes with Nelson pursuing him. Nelson pinned him against the ropes and hammered him around the face and ribs with both hands. Corbett was hitting wild, but when he did land the blows lacked power. Nelson kept after him, hooking and jabbing with both hands. Nelson pinned him against the ropes again and sent in blow after blow on the face. Corbett's mouth bleeding and he was gasping for breath as he went to his corner.

NELSON FOILS CORBETT'S UPPERCUTS.

ROUND EIGHT—Corbett missed left swings and then they went to close quarters and mixed it. Corbett began using right uppercut. Nelson foiled his close under his chin so as to catch the blow. Corbett lifted him a dozen times, but did not get through Nelson's guard. Nelson then straightened up and fought back, hooking Corbett with lefts and rights. Corbett complained that he had been butted. Nelson kept on fighting, using lefts and rights on face. Corbett tried to clinch, but Nelson shouldered him away and resumed uppercutting. Corbett was hammered unmercifully, but he spread his legs and kept his feet. Nelson had him against the ropes, pummelling him with both hands at the gong. So far as condition was concerned Nelson was as fresh as when he started.

THREW UP SPONGE AT COUNT OF SIX.

ROUND NINE—Nelson forced Corbett to ropes and hooked and hooked. Corbett got out of a tight place and danced around the ring. He jumped at Nelson, reaching the face with lefts. Nelson, however, kept after him and soon had him on the ropes again. Corbett dodged to mid-ring and used straight left three or four times. He also got in a short right uppercut three times and brought blood from Nelson's nose. Nelson kept right after him, using lefts and rights. He knocked him down with a right-hander. Corbett fell on his back. He rolled over on his face and quickly gained his feet. Nelson rushed him to ropes, hammering him with both hands. A hard right on the jaw sent Corbett to the floor again. When the timekeeper had counted six "Spider" Kelly threw up the sponge and the beaten man was lifted and carried to his corner.

Little Fighters Tell Their Stories

By Battling Nelson.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 1.—It was a different "Corbett" who fought this time compared to the man I beat last November. He was good and strong and he surprised me by taking so many punches without losing his feet. I used about three-quarters of my speed only. The reports that he was in such excellent trim made me think it would be well for me to save something for the latter rounds. I aimed for his body, hoping to weaken him and then to get in the concluding wallop. I have been accused of using butting tactics. It must have been plain to see that if this sort of offense was committed "Corbett" was the guilty one. He fought with his head only for 2 or 3 rounds. Britt knows I have posted money for a meeting with him. Let Jimmy put up his coin and get into a ring with me and he'll be sent into the "has been" class.

By Young Corbett.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 1.—What can I tell the people? I thought I was the winner until one of Nelson's swings caught me on the chin. I was strong when the gong sounded for the ninth, but he got one of those lucky punches to the mark and it stopped me. I do not regard myself as a back number yet. If I ever get him in a third fight it is likely I will have the luck and put home the finishing blow. I lost all I could raise in bets I made on myself. I even staked some of the loser's share on my chance to beat the Dane. A bookmaker holds my marker for $1,500. I think those who saw the fight will agree with me in thinking my showing favorable compared with his until he lashed out that wild one that settled matters.

'I'LL WHIP WINNER QUICKLY'--BRITT

By Jimmy Britt.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 1.—While I made it a point to watch the fight carefully, I had the winner picked before the fifth round; in fact, I had him before the fight commenced. "Corbett," while a splendid fighter, is hardly in Nelson's class, and now it is up to me to show Nelson that he is not in mine. I beat him easily on points when we met, and this time I will knock him out in quicker time than he took to beat "Corbett." The mill was one of the worst gruelling sessions I ever witnessed, and it proved that Nelson is the only man in the ring to-day who has the ability to face me. He is one of the shiftiest fighters who ever donned a mitt, and I look forward to a hot time when we meet again in the ring. It will be hot, but it will not last long. Then I'll look for someone else to lick.

Ring Experts Now Planning for

NELSON TO FIGHT BRITT

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 1.—Battling Nelson vs. Jimmy Britt will likely be the next card at one of the local clubs. Both boys are anxious to get at each other, and experts say that the Dane has improved so much his rival will have a hard time to beat him.

Young Corbett was beaten fairly in his fight with Battling Nelson at Woodward's Pavilion. It took the Dane nine rounds to turn the trick and he was as fresh as paint when he dealt "Corbett" the finishing blow.

For four rounds it was an even fight. Toward the end of the fourth "Corbett" reached Nelson's jaw with a left hook and the Dane's knees sank. That was the only round in which "Corbett" looked like a winner.

In the following rounds Nelson took a strong lead. He did not give "Corbett" an instant's rest. Half the time he had his left arm partly extended. He kept shooting it over "Corbett's" guard, landing jarring punches on the mouth and nose. From that time until the end came, blood was flowing from "Corbett's" lips.

It was a one-punch man against a fellow whose chances seemed to be as countless as the sands of the seashore. Nelson's hooks and jolts on "Corbett's" face filled the Denverite's mouth and throat with blood and interfered with his breathing, while the various rips that the Dane sent into the body weakened "Corbett" perceptibly.

CORBETT GAME TO THE END.

The Denver boy was as game as the traditional redskin. Time and again, with his back against the ropes, he lolded his arms across the face and rallied all his remaining strength for his long punch—the right hand wallop to the head, which has won "Corbett" many a hard-fought battle. He reached Nelson with this punch in the fifth. The smash landed clean on the Dane's jaw. The tow-colored thatch which covers the Dane's head bowed, and that was all. "Corbett's" friends at the ringside were amazed when they noticed how little effect the punch had. Maybe "Corbett" himself was discouraged, but he did not show it.

The Dane's eyes were as bright as diamond points. His breathing was easy and natural. His every blow denoted a big fund of reserve force, and the few counters he received only seemed to quicken his speed. He had "Corbett" limp and tired in every round from the fifth to the ninth.

NO LET-UP IN THE DANE.

In the sixth and seventh rounds "Corbett" tried to keep away, but the Dane was on top of him at all times. "Corbett" was jammed in a corner and badly pummelled. Then he would dodge out, only to be pinned against the side of the ring half way along the ropes. Nelson began dealing out half-arm blows of a punishing nature and maintaining an almost perfect guard. He caught "Corbett's" uppercuts on his forearm and he ducked his head so that "Corbett's" swings just brushed his scalp.

In the eighth "Corbett" complained that he had been butted, but the referee would not listen to fight on. Then Nelson hammered "Corbett" out of one corner into another and there were times when the ex-champion seemed hardly able to raise a hand.

"CORBETT'S" FINISH IN NINTH.

The finish came in the ninth round. "Corbett" in desperation stood breast to breast with the Dane and swung and upercut. Nelson, keen eyed and watchful, dodged "Corbett's" punches and rammed in hard half-arm blows on the face. He sent his opponent to the floor with a right to the chin. "Corbett" arose and reeled toward the ropes. He was in no condition to defend himself and Referee Welch jumped forward to hold the Dane at arm's length. Welch was too late and "Corbett" went down under the ropes from another right on the face. His seconds then threw up the sponge.

The contest settles the question of superiority beyond all question. Nelson seems to possess everything that a fighter should have. He has as much endurance apparently as Jeffries. He has the knack of keeping thoroughly cool. His hard punching power and he seldom wastes a punch.

"Corbett" was well looked after in the ring. He had such clever handlers as Joe Gans, "Spider" Kelley, Tim McGrath and Billy McBeniald.

In Nelson's corner were Fred Landers, "Smiling Meisner and "Rawhide" Kelly.

The first preliminary was a cracking good contest. It was between Jack Dolan and Georges Curren. They fought hard and fast for six rounds and the decision was a draw.

Oscar Attell, a brother of Abe Attell, scored a knockout in the second preliminary. He met Mike Kelly. They put up a slashing fight, but Kelly ran foul of a swish on the jaw in the fifth and the affair was ended.

VESPER CREW FAST GETTING IN FORM

Special to the Boston American.

PHILADELPHIA, March 1.—The candidates for the crew that is to represent the Vesper Boat Club in the Henley regatta are making great progress, according to Coach James Dempsey, who has the men in charge.

In speaking of the crew Coach Dempsey said: "Everything connected with the training is going along as smoothly as we could expect. While the necessity of choosing my men early is a little inconvenient, I do not anticipate much trouble in making a choice.

"The men are all in perfect condition, and the work they are doing is not of such a nature that they will be worn out before the Spring comes. Every man who rowed on last year's St. Louis crew has gained in weight and is much during the last few months, and I expect even better work from them this year."

Wants to Get Men on the Water.

"The sooner we are able to get out on the water the better satisfied I will be. There is quite a difference in rowing on machines and pulling an oar through water. As soon as the official notification from the stewards reaches us, work will go ahead with a renewed energy. I think it will take an exceptionally fast lot of Englishmen to beat us.

Definite news from England regarding the application of the Vesper Boat Club for an entry in the English Henley regatta will probably have the effect of bringing out several new candidates. Before the other week passes the squad will likely be increased to twenty. Another college man will take his first practice.

His name has not been given out by the Henley committee, but he is a member of the club.

While the men are busily at work conditioning themselves, Harry B. Hoffman, the chairman of the Henley committee, is laboring to arrange the many details that require attention before a crew can be taken abroad.

The greatest care is being taken that no rule of the Henley Regatta Association is violated. The crew will be formed of club members only, and will not be made up of men from various clubs, as is generally supposed.

Former Pennsy Giant Joins.

Williams, who pulled a good oar in the Pennsylvania 1902-3 crews, is the latest to join the Vesper Boat Club Henley squad at the Athletic Club, of Philadelphia last night. He is a young giant in stature, being six feet, one inch tall, and weighing 185 pounds.

With Williams, there were eighteen other enthusiastic candidate, who were given a strenuous night's work in the huge gymnasium. In the squad were Chrisman Hoffman, Captain Wilder, Sebell, Mecklenaughan, Abell, Johnson, O'Brien, Schuman, Lockwood, Hartman, Wark, Neel, Lott, Exley, Armstrong, Marsh, Cresser and Callahan.

A prominent official of the Vesper Boat Club announced that he had received a cablegram from England to the effect that the application of Vesper for entry to the English Henley Regatta has been favorably acted upon by the stewards.

It is necessary in this entry to give the names of twelve men who will compose the crew and substitutes. The entry therefore, will be held as long as possible in order that Coach James Dempsey will be able to select the best men.

TO USE AUTO ENGINES IN MOTOR BOATS

Special to the Boston American.

NEW YORK, March 1.—Following the declaration of Herbert L. Bowden, of Boston, that he will take his two four-cylinder engines from the record car used at Daytona and fit them to an auto boat for competition this season in Boston and New York, comes the announcement that Edward R. Thomas will follow up his successes on land with his big racing car by building an auto boat which will be fitted with a powerful motor.

In the boat will be two eighty-horse-power Dietrich motors, coupled up, giving nearly 170 horse power, or twenty over the horse power of the challenger, W. Gould Brokaw's boat, which travelled recently a mile in 1:02:42 Miami.

With Mr. Bowden, Mr. Thomas, Mr. Brokaw, Mr. Wallace, S. B. Stevens and several others fitted out with thirty-mile-an-hour boats, the season for auto boat racing will be lively. The presence of Henri Fournier with his great Hotchkiss boat and the addition of several fast Flat Irons to the fleet of the water by Hollander and Engeman will provide fast and close racing.

W. J. Morgan is in the South arranging for match races at Havana, Miami, Palm Beach and the Isle of Pines, where one of the greatest meets of the year will be held.

STAR PLAYERS ARE INELIGIBLE

A surprise was sprung in the Dorchester High School basketball circles when it was announced that Captain Finn, Dorgan and Kelly, a trio of the star players on the dire, were ineligible to play on account of deficiency in their studies.

Dorchester will practically have to play their annual game against Springfield High at Dorchester Friday night, with a substitute team, as the season for auto boat racing will be lively. The presence of Henri Fournier with his great Hotchkiss boat and the addition of several fast Flat Irons to the fleet of the water by Hollander and Engeman will provide fast and close racing.

W. J. Morgan is in the South arranging for match races at Havana, Miami, Palm Beach and the Isle of Pines, where one of the greatest meets of the year will be held.

FRED TENNEY WILL COACH TUFTS' BOYS

Fred E. Tenney of the Boston Nationals will take charge of the Tufts baseball squad March 4 and will continue his coaching for two weeks, when he leaves for the South. From that time on the team will be under the direction of Pat Fleming, a former second baseman. A pressed brick, champion, captain of the 1902 team, is in charge.

Why Married Life Is Dull, by Dorothy Dix

MARRIED life is dull evenings with her and try to take some interest in the subjects that amuse her.

Women don't really marry to get a dummy dressed up in men's clothing, with a newspaper glued in its hand.

If men wish to make their lives happy they will never forget that women care more for words than they do for deeds, and that they will forgive anything to the husband who pays them compliments and little attentions. The husband is the audience to which the wife plays, and if she doesn't get the glad hand from him she feels that life is cinders, ashes and dust.

If husbands and wives want married life to be interesting they must respect the fads, or shirks, but in reality there is each other's prejudices, and give to each other the same liberty they demand for themselves.

These are simple rules for settling a great problem, but they will work, for happiness in marriage is not luck. It is volition.

If the intellectual men and women, who find nothing so entrancing as psychological discussions, married each other they could never be bored.

If the men who are fussy about their eating, and like to make the salad dressing themselves, would only marry the domestic girls who love to cook, what endless joys they could have devising menus and inventing new dishes together!

If the gay and dashing women would only marry the rounders, they might drink their cocktails and eat their after-dinner lobsters in peace and harmony studying Browning, there would be no use for the divorce courts.

If a man wants to make married life interesting to his wife he must make her his partner, and give her a fair divide in the pleasures and perquisites of life.

Being a woman doesn't make a high-spirited individual enjoy begging. Souls do not wear petticoats.

If a man wants to make married life the race, but it would promote domestic thrilling for his wife, he will spend his felicity.

Neither has luck anything to do with matrimonial felicity. That is the result of will power and determination.

Barring the few criminals of both sexes—and the people who complain of the dullness of married life are more disgruntled than wicked—there is no man or woman with whom you cannot get along if you try, and none with whom dear you can get along if you don't.

If she wants to keep married life from being dull for her husband a woman must praise his virtues and ignore his faults.

If women would devote as much time to studying their husbands as they do to Studying Browning, there would be no use for the divorce courts.

If a man wants to make married life interesting to his wife he must make her his partner, and give her a fair divide in the pleasures and perquisites of life.

Being a woman doesn't make a high-spirited individual enjoy begging. Souls do not wear petticoats.

If a man wants to make married life the race, but it would promote domestic thrilling for his wife, he will spend his felicity.

What's Your Opinion? Is Married Life Dull?

Editor Woman's Page:

Patience as a household goddess is not enshrined in all hearts nor households, but if she be not soon recognized as such by husband and wife, down goes olympus.

The arguments of Miss Fox are what scrappy, obsolete, and she impresses one as a writer of odds with the knowledge of the world. Whenever a woman writer becomes, through observation or world experience, cynical, she has lost a personal dangler.

Matrimony as an institution suffers most at the hands of well-dressed, well-fed men and women living in well-appointed homes.

No; the people who have been equal in matrimony by reason of common interests, sound sense and love are not advertising their contentment, and those who have not been unequal have a voice in Miss Fitz.

Medford. READER.

Miss Dix's articles on the dullness of marriage are nothing but the philosophy of misrepresentation. I advise her to be a "cheerful optimist," instead of harping upon the blunders of humanity which are the outgrowth of pure ignorance. She can't climb a mountain out of a mole hill.

All the troubles of married life occur because the principals are ignorant of their duties to each other and to society. Let the wife attend to the house, and the husband supply the necessities, and take upon himself any laborious work around the house.

Husband and wife should be truthful, kind, sympathetic, sociable, unselfish and sympathetic. The richest treasure a man can obtain is the love of a good woman. J. H. H.

Daily Short Story

Beside the Waters

By Mary E. Wilkinson

THE sea was moaning and tossing and fretting like a tired child, its white-caps hurrying upon each other and then fitfully bursting into scudding rings and heaps of foam.

Saida stood with her hands clasped before her, looking at the restless water, only an occasional rippling of lace and white at her throat betraying the quick, irregular impersonation of unconscious art.

Every line was perfect. The savory of the wind had left its clinging folds and silken, lissome transparency; the drop of the head, with its single coil of gold, swaying to and fro while making its long black serpentine sign in the sand, the classic contour of the arms, repeatedly pressing in the wet pressure of the petty brows shining like lustre beads held on pearls, though the eyes were hid in the downcast bend of the head. A living, pulsing picture of art and real looking from a canvas of mother nature.

Presently she lifted her head and gazed away to the west, where a bank of drowsy, cloudy was brooding, and muttering of the dying tempest of hide-and-seek light, like a lion being driven to battle by the goading pricks of the spear. Then she sighed a long-drawn, heavy-laden sigh, as if she and the thunder over there and those dark banks might be akin in their mood.

Perhaps it was that she and the coming storm and the unrecognized, occult connection which all thinking of nature feel yet do not comprehend.

Life had held its scenes as well as its comic dramas for Saida Hoveil. That knowledge sharp, distilled from thought and suffering, which later years bring in all times powerful, while necessarily subtle, magnetic force, spoke from each feature and posture in expressive emendation from past and gesture, from movement and gesture.

She had passed into the realm of Macbeth, and drunk of its muddened potion; had stood under the awful shadow of the Sphinx, with her primitive fears whispers for the uninitiated, and had risen again.

Now she was dreaming over those inspiring heights of her experience which meant so much; which had left the red deposit in the crucible, starting from the ashes of the concession, "What a drawing power that woman has."

The sound of crushing gravel, the quick tread of muscular strength and the young voice of one who suppressed at least a system of emotion or shadow, had that night believed.

Actually, I had no idea what had become of you; fact of all would I expect to meet you again down here."

Was it an emotion born of fright? A thought of what might could, would or should be? Did he think she had need of redress? Had she need of that? Which thought was uppermost?

They were clasping hands. At first she turned away, but recovered her poise and looked at him without a word. Only her pallor had deepened, and the single coil of gold had begun hooding additional flicker of ghastly glint as a strong wind, full of sunlight, came through a sudden rift in the increasing clouds to the west.

Evidently pride had won. Her assumed coldness, her freezing mien, was the direct impersonation of unconscious art.

"Yes, yes, well, I hardly know," came the answer, finally and measuredly.

"Hardly know! Then you have left us the Continent. I can't say, though, that your absence was lamented. Then, Myra knew I had decided to come to the seaside again here. Perhaps you told her, because you can and have and do suffer what only a true woman suffers. I have come to retrieve if you will permit."

Back of the two lay the stretch of short Summer. In one memory it had seared its golden impression, and in another in flames of fatal fire. In tongues of white vengeance hissed its accusing birth, or tolled of ordinary spheres of casual intercourse and dainty existence; but ambiguous vampire of unearthly mould and vesture.

"How noble of you; permitted to the cold, unsympathetic world to misjudge me," Saida's sneering sense of humor satisfied, but she let them back into the long run. Man's impassioned love for the same woman is of no slight duration. Uncertain, coy and hard to please, so are we, and yet to others, yet, to many of us," the tones falling in perceptible pathos, "in truly our whole existences, especially where the one love ravishes the life like an enfeebling flight or shadow.

"I know, I know," he replied quickly, if not impatiently. His horse had strayed over the strand to the water's edge, and now he was keeping the reins through constant tightness, the animal exhibiting that restless, unsteady demeanor expressive of a knowledge of atmospheric phenomena. He was anxious for shelter, for action, whether the same feeling was shared by master and horse belonging in presence through the lesser potentiality of the inferior or others.

Bronson Monford was not known for any unusual quality of equanimity, neither placidity. He was governed by those traits of high nobility instilled by an ancestry of the real aristocracy. But he was a man after all, and the chains of human nature. Determination of adherence to those principles of manhood worthy of his high lineage were also numbered high on the list of ordinary affable control.

His luck was toward her. The horse was becoming unmanageable. Perhaps it was just as well.

"Oh, I know," he reiterated; "it's all the same, though, when I'm willing to do the right thing. Emotion is not the whole of life to a man."

She was on the edge of the shell-furred water, stooping to look at a spray of coral washed up by the lashing waves.

Turning suddenly, as if stung by the words, she faced him, her whole soldier-like figure seeming to expand and grow in its height, the pearly coral still held in the trembling gloved fingers, a shower of sea spray on her face and hair.

"Because I am what I am, because I am and have and do suffer with what you call love, love even to the point of perfect selfishness, love to perfect selfishness, with or without pure art, Mr. Monford, I am not going to spoil the world a free man.

"Because I am what I am, because I am the child of my birth,

HAVE FOREIGN TITLES LOST GLAMOR FOR YANKEE GIRLS?

AMERICAN GIRLS UNDAZZLED BY TITLES.

Pittsburg Heiress Follows Example Set by Boston Belle and Jilts an Italian Count.

Is the American girl seen a great light? Have our ladies ceased to covet foreign titles?

Have they found gilded antiques, and consequent unhappiness, undesirable?

Answers to these questions seem to be given by at least two beautiful American heiresses within the last week. On February 26 it was announced that Miss Nina Twombly Jones of this city had received invitations to her wedding with Captain Kanzler, Edler von Saarberg, of Austria, because she did not love him; now comes the announcement from Pittsburg that Miss Elizabeth Howe, the richest heiress in Pennsylvania, has jilted Count Cini, a grand nephew of the late Pope Leo, and had married instead a poor young lawyer, who had been her school sweetheart.

Frankly, it is stated by Miss Howe's friends, that the cause of the rupture were the extraordinary demands made by Count Cini.

This same reason may underlie Miss Jones's sudden determination not to wed the Austrian noble. In this city this proposed wedding was looked forward to as one of the great social events of the season.

Asked Payment of Debts.

Count Cini demanded of Miss Howe, in Pittsburg, so says her friends, a certain sum, the payment of all his debts, aggregating many hundreds of thousands of dollars, and insisted on a stipulation in the marriage contract that he was to be permitted practical freedom after the ceremony. When these demands were presented to Miss Howe, who, it is estimated, is worth $10,000,000 in her own right, she did not object to the first two, but the last caused her to change her mind.

Then Miss Howe jilted the Count and was wedded quietly to a poor lawyer, Frank P. Sproul, whom she had loved since childhood, and whom they went to school together. What demands Captain Kanzler made on Miss Jones of this city are not known, but no cause for the break of this engagement has been given beyond the fact that Miss Jones had decided she did not love the Austrian. It is said among friends that he, too, made extraordinary demands, which so disgusted Miss Jones that she recalled the wedding invitations.

Within a few months other American girls have taken the same attitude toward titled foreigners as have Miss Jones and Miss Howe. Miss Gladys Parker-Deacon, of Boston, and Miss Geraldine Farrar, also of this State, were mentioned only recently as being madly loved by the Crown Prince of Germany. Either might, the fond aunt and parental influence been brought to bear on the young Prince, have probably been the Empress of Germany. Of these two perhaps the Prince loved Miss Parker-Deacon more than the other.

When the Boston girl appeared by request at the Imperial palace in Berlin, a great social favorites. She was idolized for her beauty, her wit and her physical grace. Innumerable offers of marriage were made to her, all of which she declined. Then came the adoration of the Crown Prince, who boldly offered her his hand, and it was refused. Meantime the influence of the entire state machinery had been brought to bear on the young Prince. For a time he refused to listen and continued his suit.

The Kaiser Stepped In.

Then he met Miss Geraldine Farrar, a prima donna then singing in Berlin. She is the daughter of a Massachusetts baseball player. She, too, captivated Germany, and the Crown Prince became her most ardent slave. Again diplomacy was paid court to her, and finally in this case the State and the Kaiser had to step in to end the matter. Miss Farrar had, because of the Prince's attentions, been compelled to refrain from the opera company in which she was singing. For a time she was at her home here in Melrose.

Then Miss Jessie Langhorne sisters of Virginia, then Mrs. Robert G. Shaw of this city, also snubbed the nobility of Europe by promptly refusing to accept a brooch from the Grand Duke Michael of Russia. This was previous to her divorce. The brooch was especially made for the Grand Duke's presentation to her and the cost of it was fabulous. When Mrs. Shaw received it she kept it for only a few hours and then it was returned posthaste to the sender.

Only a few days ago Mrs. Shaw was presented to King Edward at one of the most brilliant courts ever held. She is now a society favorite in England, where she purposes to remain for some time.

SCARLET LIES! SCARLET LIES! SCARLET LIES!

Greatest Love Story of the Day Begins in Boston American Next Saturday.

ROMANCE OF BOSTON LIFE

"'Tis Love that Makes the World go 'round."

Perhaps!

Sometimes Love makes the World, instead of "going 'round," turn some pretty sharp corners, square, acutely angular, and even criss-cross.

There's a lot of other things that nowadays influence any other of the world's creation. For instance, MONEY and HATE, and CHANCE and VILLANY.

Well, here's how it came about, anyway:

Stephen Holland was known as the luckiest man in Boston.

He had Birth, Breeding and a Bank Account, about ten million. That ought to satisfy almost any young man of five and twenty, but first of all he had the love of Mary Armstrong, only daughter of Robert Armstrong, the multimillionaire manufacturer.

Her parents approved their daughter's choice. There wasn't a cloud on the horizon of their domestic future.

And then—

Well, Envy, Hatred and All Uncharitable news appeared.

The serpent entered the Garden of Eden, and trouble began at once.

Now don't you want to know all about the matter?

It's just a tale, a romance, a social novel, but one of the greatest love stories ever written.

It's called "SCARLET LIES," and it's by the author of "Married to Mystery."

And it will begin in the BOSTON AMERICAN next Saturday.

If you want to be the first to read the greatest love story of the day, one that everybody will be talking about, don't fail to get the first instalment, which will appear on Saturday.

Don't lose track of the adventures of Stephen Holland and the sweetheart, Mary Armstrong, or you'll regret it all your life.

COMING MUSIC FOR BOSTON

The Boston Symphony Orchestra pension fund concert at Symphony Hall next Sunday evening promises to be one of the greatest of the remarkable events given for this cause. Mme. Gadski and Mr. Van Yorx will be the soloists, singing a choice list of Wagner music drama selections.

At the sixth of the season's concerts by the Boston Symphony Quartet in Jordan Hall next Monday evening the assisting artists will be Max Zach and Carl Barth, with Dvorak's piano quintet in A major, Op. 81. Beethoven's Scherzo from quartet in B minor, No. 59, No. 3, as the program. The last of the season's concerts by the Kneisel Quartet will be given at Potter Hall on Friday evening, March 14, with Ernest Schelling, the pianist, assisting artist. The Saint-Saëns quartet for piano, violin, viola and 'cello, and with other interesting works on the program.

FINDS ELOPERS AFTER A YEAR

After pursuing her missing husband, Pacifico Montillo, for a year, Mrs. Rosina Montillo has had him arrested on the charge of bigamy, and Marie Adducca, the woman with whom he ran away and whom he is said to have married, is also locked up.

Montillo married his first wife in Italy and came with her to Albany, N. Y., where he became infatuated with a pretty friend of his wife, Marie Adducca, who came to live at the Montillo home with her mother a year ago. They are said to have been married last year in Boston.

A Dollar's Worth Free To Any Rheumatic Sufferer

I ask no deposit—no reference—no security. There is nothing to risk—nothing to promise—nothing to pay, either now or later. Are there those who have given up hope? Has no remedy may have a full dollar's worth free to try.

I challenge all the world to show me a case I know that Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy will not relieve ALWAYS to bring the utmost relief that medicine can. Years before I discovered what is now known as the nature of Rheumatism. For Rheumatism is really Crystalized Poison!

Your blood is always full of poison—the poison you eat and drink and breathe into your system. It is the purpose of the blood to absorb and carry off this very poison. And the kidneys, which are the blood filters, are expected to cleanse the blood and send it back through the system clean, to gather more poison which, they, in turn, will eliminate.

But sometimes the kidneys fail. And sometimes, from some other cause, the blood gets so full of poison that the kidneys can't do it all. This is the cause of Rheumatism. The poisons accumulates and crystalizes. The crystals look like little grains of sugar or of fine table salt. The blood carries them and they increase in size. Then, when it can carry them no longer, it deposits them in a joint—in a bone—anywhere.

Then comes the pain—the dull ache in your arm on a rainy day—these are the outward signs of the unseen crystals, and the reddest flushes and unspeakable anguish of the sufferer who has allowed this symptom to run unheeded and unrelieved for years—these are the evidences of what Rheumatism, neglected, can do.

Rheumatism includes lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia, gout—for all these are the results of rheumatic poison in the blood.

Plainly, the first thing to do is to procure the poison. But this is not enough. The FORMATION of the poison must be stopped, so that nature may have a chance to dissolve and eliminate the crystals which have already formed. Unless this is done there can be no cure—no permanent relief.

I searched the whole earth for a specific for Rheumatism—something that I or any physician could feel safe in prescribing—something that we could depend on not only occasionally, but ALWAYS. For the ravages of Rheumatism are every-where and genuine relief is rare.

I spent twenty years in experimenting before I felt satisfied that I had a certain remedy for this dread disease. Then I named it my Rheumatic Remedy and put it on the market.

Certain Relief

The secret lay in a wonderful chemical I found in Germany. When I found this chemical, I knew that I had struck the ground at last. It would be practically certain. But even then, before I made an announcement—before I was willing to put my name to it—I made another test, 2,000 tests! And my failures were but 2 per cent.

This German chemical is the last ingredient I use in Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure—but it made my remedy possible—made possible an achievement which, I doubt not, could have been made in no other way.

This chemical was very expensive. The duty, too, was high. But I had found the ground for which it was $4.50 per pound for a REAL remedy for the worst case of Rheumatism—a REAL relief from the greatest torture human being know.

I don't mean that Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure can turn bony joints into flesh again—that is impossible. But it will drive from the blood the poison that causes pain and swelling, and then that is the end of pain and swelling—the end of the suffering—the end of Rheumatism. That is why I can afford to make this liberal offer—and is why I can afford to spend the FIRST dollar that Rheumatic sufferers, the world over, may learn of my remedy.

Simply Write Me

The offer is open to everyone, everywhere, who has not tried my remedy. But you must write me for the free dollar package order. I will send you an order on your druggist which he will accept as gladly as he would accept a dollar. He will hand you the dollar package and charge it to me. And he will send the bill to me. There are no conditions—no requirements. All that I ask you to do is to write—write to-day. I will send you my book on Rheumatism besides. It is free. It will help you to understand your case. Address Dr. Shoop, Box C 908, Racine, Wis.

Mild cases are sometimes cured by a single package.—On sale at forty thousand drug stores.

GIRL LEADERS IN SOCIETY LOSE JEWELS

Thorough search for the gems worth from $5,000 to $10,000, lost by Miss Constance Biddle and Miss Emily Fox, of Philadelphia, in Groton, has failed to recover the jewels or the money and checks aggregating several hundred dollars which were lost at the same time.

The possibility of theft is now held very strongly by the Groton police, and they have been ordered by Miss Biddle and Miss Fox to investigate the case.

Each of the girls is heiress to millions, and the intrinsic value of the lost jewels does not worry them, but some of the diamond rings and pins lost were valued as heirlooms or for their associations.

The two young women came to Groton a few days before Washington's birthday as guests of Mr. Endicott Howe, of Hereford street.

On February 22 they attended amateur theatricals given at the Groton Boys' School, accompanied by George Howe, a Harvard man, and James S. Whitney, son of Henry M. Whitney, of Boston, with Mrs. Howe as chaperone. They believe the bag containing their valuables was stolen on the train or was lost between the railway station at Ayer and the school.

Only Small Reward Offered.

A reward of only $50 was offered, as it was feared the knowledge of the value of the missing jewels might tempt dishonest persons to join in the search. Before announcing their loss, the two young women assisted by Mrs. Howe, made a careful search, retracing their route to the school and railway station, but without result.

The jewels, checks and money were all contained in a small handbag carried by Miss Biddle. She is positive that she had the bag on boarding the train for Groton, but does not remember when she missed it. The gems included five diamond rings, a diamond and pearl pendant, two stickpins, a sapphire ornament and a considerable sum, estimated at between $400 and $500 in money and checks.

Troubled Over Guests' Loss.

Mrs. Howe and her son are much annoyed and worried by the loss sustained by their guests, but can find no clue to the mysterious disappearance of Miss Biddle's handbag with its precious contents. They think she may have dropped it in her seat in the train and that some unscrupulous person picked it up and made off with it, but Miss Biddle is confident that she had the bag when she left the train.

Both the young ladies have gone back to Philadelphia, and are communicating with the searchers by telegraph. Miss Biddle is a reigning Philadelphia belle, daughter of Mrs. George Biddle, and Miss Fox is the daughter of Joseph C. Fox, head of another of the most prominent Philadelphia families.

CHAMPAGNE AT THE INAUGURAL BALL A PROBLEM

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The question of champagne now is interesting the people who have charge of the supper arrangements for the inaugural ball. Besides that, there is a bill or resolution before Congress, introduced by Representative Babcock, to allow the saloons to be open on Sunday. Protests are coming in from religious organizations against Sunday opening.

Congress passed a bill about two years ago declaring that no alcoholic drinks should be served in any public building, and therefore the saloon feature was cut out of the Senate and House restaurants. But the legislators, perhaps, forgot that the restriction also would apply to the Pension Office, in which the ball is to be held.

It is not known how the inauguration caterers will settle this question, but it is already prudently said that the "supper will be at very reasonable rates."

The public comfort committee also is discussing keeping barber shops open on Sunday.

Four companies of the Ninth Cavalry have come in and marched up Pennsylvania avenue. Some of the troops of the Seventh Cavalry have come in, but there was no parade. The Tenth Cavalry, the organization which played an important part in the rescue of the Rough Riders in San Juan Hill, is also expected.

The Indian representation in the parade will consist of the delegation of a half dozen famous chiefs, recently created, and a cadet battalion of 300 of the Indians from the Carlisle School. The Carlisle band of fifty pieces will accompany the battalion.

The governors of fourteen States are expected to participate in the parade. They are:

Governors Bell, Vermont; Roberts, Connecticut; Cobb, Maine; McLane, New Hampshire; Lea, Delaware; Cummins, Iowa; Warner, Michigan; Blanchard, Louisiana; Higgins, New York; Pennypacker, Pennsylvania; Montague, Virginia; Glenn, North Carolina; Herrick, Ohio; Warfield, Maryland. Lieutenant-Governor Jackson will represent Rhode Island.

DOMESTICS TO FORM UNION

Girl and women housekeepers of Boston are to have a union. It will be affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and there will be a wage scale, sick benefits and other restrictions imposed for the protection to domestics. The movement has grown out of the Domestic Service Union, which has given up its quarters at No. 542 Newbury street, and will, next Thursday, occupy rooms at No. 6 Beacon street.

All the funds and energies of the union are now directed toward the establishment of a home for aged and ill domestics to be located in Milton. The membership of the union is 2,000, and 1,200 Back Bay families have pledged themselves to support it.

DANCED UNDER 2 FLAGS.

Underneath American and Irish flags twined together, the members of the Pilgrim Social Club danced at their ninth annual ball held in Paine Memorial Hall. Former President Owen Lavin was presented with a gold badge.

VERY FEW PEOPLE

Are Free From Some Form of Indigestion.

Very few people are free from some form of indigestion, but scarcely two will have the same symptoms.

Some suffer most directly after eating, bloating from gas in stomach and bowels, others have heartburn or sour risings, still others have palpitation of heart, headaches, sleeplessness, pains in chest and under shoulder blades, some have extreme nervousness, as in nervous dyspepsia.

But whatever the symptoms may be, the cause in all cases of indigestion is the same; that is, the stomach for some reason fails to properly and promptly digest what is eaten.

This is the whole story of stomach troubles in a nutshell. The stomach must have rest and assistance, and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give it both by supplying those natural digestives which every weak stomach lacks, owing to the failure of the peptic glands in the stomach to secrete sufficient acid and pepsin to thoroughly digest and assimilate the food eaten.

One grain of the active principle in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest 3,000 grains of meat, eggs or other wholesome food, and this claim has been proven by actual experiment, which anyone can perform for himself in the following manner: Cut a hard boiled egg into very small pieces, as it would be if masticated; place the egg and two or three of the tablets in a bottle or jar containing warm water heated to 98 degrees (the temperature of the body) and keep it at this temperature for three and one-half hours; at the end of which time the egg will be as completely digested as it would have been in the healthy stomach of a hungry boy.

The point of this experiment is that what Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do to the egg in the bottle they will do to the egg or meat in the stomach, and nothing else will rest and invigorate the stomach so safely and effectually. Even a little child can take Stuart's Tablets with safety and benefit if its digestion is weak, and the thousands of cures accomplished by their regular daily use are easily explained when it is understood that they are composed of vegetable essences, asceptic pepsin, diastase and Golden Seal, which mingle with the food and digest it thoroughly, giving the overworked stomach a chance to recuperate.

Dieting never cures Dyspepsia, neither do pills and cathartic medicines, which simply irritate and inflame the intestines.

When enough food is eaten and promptly digested there will be no constipation, nor in fact will there be disease of any kind, because good digestion means good health in every organ.

The merit and success of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are world wide, and they are sold at the moderate price of 50 cents for full sized package in every drug store in the United States and Canada, as well as in Europe.

The Beauty of Our Separate States System

It Makes All Kinds of Experiments Possible Without Too Much Confusion

The country that we live in is made up of forty-seven States—including the newest baby ones—and several Territories.

The original combination consisted of thirteen States.

When these States agreed to unite for defence, all of them—fortunately for us—were determined to preserve their individuality, keeping State rights inviolate.

Each State, as it happened, was jealous of the other States. The little fellows feared that the big ones would have too much power in the national Congress—that is how we happen to have only two United States Senators for each State, no matter how big or how little it is.

The States fought for their State rights, and they have kept on fighting ever since, with occasional violations of those rights—as when Cleveland sent the Federal troops into Illinois against Governor Altgeld's protest.

It turns out now that it is a very fortunate thing for the entire country that the States preserved their separate individuality and their separate powers.

As each State can make its own laws, settle its own questions and punish its own criminals, regardless of the others, IT IS POSSIBLE FOR THE STATES INDIVIDUALLY TO MAKE ALL SORTS OF EXPERIMENTS IN GOVERNMENT, AND IN MISGOVERNMENT, without disturbing the nation as a whole.

We believe that in the end a great deal of progress in this country will be due to various State experiments, carried on independently of the United States Government and of the United States as a nation.

A great deal of good will come from the fact that each State is able to make its separate interesting experiments, AND A GREAT DEAL OF HARM WILL BE AVOIDED through the fact that the separate States can make grave mistakes without jeopardizing peace or progress in the other States.

For instance, we have recently seen one State—Colorado—absolutely in a state of civil war. That civil war was as real, as savage and brutal in its way as our great Civil War in the sixties, BUT, FORTUNATELY, IT WAS CONFINED TO THE ONE STATE OF COLORADO.

The miners and the mine owners were fighting. The judges and the militia were breaking the laws, committing deliberate murders, with the support of the Government. Such a state of things, if extended throughout the whole country, would have meant anarchy and the destruction of government. But, fortunately, under our national system it was possible for Colorado to go through this crisis alone, without dragging the rest of the nation into it or disturbing the peace of the country in general.

Experiments for good, in the same way, can be conducted in individual States.

For instance, we now have in Kansas an energetic fight against Standard Oil extortion and corruption. The Governor and the authorities of the State are devoting their energies to fighting the big criminal trust. They are attending to the matter, setting precedents and a good example, without making it necessary for all the governments of all the States to take a hand in the row.

In our Southern States—thanks to the separation of State governments—the States are able through their local laws to deal with their race problem. They can take such steps as they think necessary, and obtain results without interfering with the general elective system of the entire country.

All over the Union the different States, working through their State governments, are solving problems, making experiments, or getting into trouble, without disturbing the great body of the nation.

Delaware and Rhode Island have disgraced themselves with political corruption. They are fighting out their questions of popular government without disturbing the rest of us.

Ohio, stimulated by Tom Johnson and other earnest individuals of the type of Sam Jones, is making experiments in reduced street car fares.

New Jersey, on her own account, ended the disgrace of public race horse gambling and betting. And so it goes.

In the future, and it is to be hoped very soon, many very useful and very radical experiments will be made by the different States, each trying to improve conditions, making the necessary sacrifices and bearing the necessary discomfort, without bothering the rest of the country.

All of the States, presumably, will adopt the new ideas as soon as they shall be proved permanently valuable. All will profit by any really good and successful experiment that the individual States may make without suffering for errors of judgment, without being disturbed during the period of experiment in useful legislation.

In this way we may secure municipal ownership, wise taxation laws, sensible legislation for working people—and all without disturbing the general national serenity.

The old fighters for State rights did not foresee the most important feature of separate State government. We ourselves do not thoroughly realize it as yet. It is evident that the ideal government is a union of many separate governments, all obedient to certain unquestioned general laws and free to make individual experiments—just as the ideal society consists of many individuals bound by general laws of recognized moral necessity, yet free to make unlimited experiments—the SUCCESSFUL experiment of the individual STATE or the individual person contributing in the end, through general adoption, to the welfare of all.

VERSES ON RUSSIA

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The following lines express my views of the Russian situation:

RUSSIA.

The sun of freedom yet shall shine
Upon that dark and bleeding land;
Led by the light of truth divine
Justice there shall take her stand:

To break the chains of tyranny,
To raze her crumbling throne,
To set her martyred peasants free
And shake the world from zone to zone!

Why the Government of the United States Is Unrepresentative, and the Means by Which the People Can Secure the Right to Initiate Such Laws as They Think Necessary and to Put Them Into Effect.

Under our present system of government the power of originating laws and controlling public offices is in the people—that is, in theory; in practice it is not in the people.

The executive committee, the secret conference, the political ring controls legislation and governmental policies.

In deciding what shall be done in municipal affairs, State affairs and national affairs, there is really no public deliberation, no public discussion, no public sentiment. The policy which controls is decided upon in some private conference, in a private room, behind closed doors.

And after these bosses have agreed on a program they go about creating public sentiment in favor of it and purchasing the votes necessary to support it. Newspapers are subsidized, leading politicians are approached and the star chamber policy agreed on in secret by the bosses is foisted upon the people by the use of what Bismarck called the reptile fund.

Thus it is that the great body of the American people in whom the Constitution of the country recognizes sovereign power, are reduced to helplessness.

Roughly, they are divided into two great parties—Republican and Democratic. The individual Democrat must indorse the star chamber methods and policies of his party or be vilified by its newspapers and its leaders as a deserter and a traitor. The individual Republican must swallow whatever dose his star chamber bosses prepare for him or be denounced by the editors and the leaders as a renegade or an apostate.

Thus, the party lash makes cowards of us all, and has subdued us to a political servitude that is shameful to ourselves and destructive of the best interests of our country.

The great body of the people know nothing of the laws that are being passed until they are called on to obey them. They have no hand in building political platforms. They have no control over political nominations.

And when they put men in office by their submissive votes they have no control over the officer during his term of service.

In the case of the Federal Judge we have an officer, not appointed by the people, not in touch with the people, not controllable by the people, and yet exercising vast powers which he alone defines; which his selfish interests and ambition cause him constantly to enlarge; and neither the executive nor the legislative branch of the government seems disposed to assert itself, and by checking the usurpations of the judicial department, preserve that balance between the three great branches of the government which was contemplated by our fathers and is necessary for the well-being of the Republic.

Neither of the two old political parties proposes any remedy for this alarming state of affairs. A new party should propose a remedy, one which has been tried in a civilized state among Christian people, and found effective. It should give to the people the right to initiate such laws as they think they need, and to do this by petition. It should give them the right to veto such laws as they do not need, and this may be done by having all laws referred back to the voters for their discussion and ratification.

If they do not approve the law, they vote against and thus condemn it. That would be the end of it. A new party should give the people the right to instruct their officers and to compel those officers to represent the people.

When such an officer refuses to do his duty and becomes a traitor to the people, who elected him, then they should have the right at once to recall him, to cancel his commission and to choose another representative.

All officers should be elected by the people—from the Postmaster up to the Senator, from the Senator up to the Federal judge. By this practical scheme the reins of power would be again put in the hands of the people, where they belong.

Little Editorials from the People

A WOMAN'S PLEA FOR RESPECT TO MASSACHUSETTS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Are the citizens of Boston, those men who make up the quota of its population, losing respect for its House of State, or is it a matter of ignorance? This question arose in my mind on Washington's Birthday, February 22, at the public reception of our Governor.

As the long line of men and women, young and old, marched from corridor to corridor I was surprised that the men of the procession, with a very few exceptions, did not remove their hats. On an average, only one man out of fifty uncovered his head. The majority of boys, ranging from nine to twelve years of age, did not forget the teachings of their home or school. They seemed to realize that their surroundings deserved some show of consideration.

I saw two old gentlemen in line who wore long capes and soft hats. With due respect to their age, I presume their health did not permit of a removal of head-dress. I give them the benefit of the doubt.

In Memorial Hall, that place of beauty, with its battle scarred flags, sad reminders of other days, we are required to honor the flag by removing hats. Dig I see any hats on in this sacred place? Yes, I am sorry to say that I did.

Is it not customary for a man to uncover his head upon entering a church? Then why not show the same respect to our House of State?

Every citizen who enters the historic portals of Boston's State edifice should bare his head out of respect to his State and his nation. BLANCHE HART.

Boston, Feb. 25, 1905.

APPROVES OUR PUBLIC SCHOOL VIEWS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Several weeks ago you wrote such a glowing editorial upon our public school question that only illness at the time and since has restrained me from shouting "Long live Hearst!" and "God save our public schools!" I had occasion to voice my sentiments in a monthly paper one year ago, when I made a statement such as you have affirmed, that the home, the church and the Sunday school were the places provided for religion, with teachings and creeds suited to all our individual needs, but that moral training, I thought, could be exemplified, made more impressive to and upon the plastic mind than at present; so I exult in the fact that the right spirit is rising; the spirit that "dares to be a Daniel," as it were, "dares to stand alone, dares to have a purpose true, and dares to make it known."

I had with me a paper fearless enough to disclose an argument like Bourke Cochran's, which is so thoroughly antagonistic to our public schools, and a newspaper that would endorse the loyal statements of President Schurman of Cornell University.

The pronounced views expressed in the editorial will bear many thousand times repeating, that "the public school is one of the noblest influences existing in the world," and that "it makes real Americans." SARAH A. S. LAW.

Warren.
